The Michigan Main Street program is an economic development tool based in historic preservation. Focused on the revitalization of traditional commercial districts, the program encompasses four key components: design, organization, promotion, and economic restructuring. Qualifying communities receive facade rehabilitation design assistance from the Michigan Main Street architect as part of the technical services package. These rehabilitation projects provide a significant impact for those communities who take advantage of the services. The building at 205 Fifth Street is representative of several facade rehabilitations underway or completed in the Calumet Main Street area. The visual and economic impact of the Main Street approach is evident in the renewed vitality of the traditional commercial district.
