

Teach for the Watershed Program

Herman Miller and the West Ottawa Public School District

Herman Miller hosted 96 students from Great Lakes Elementary as part of the West Michigan Environmental Action Council's "Teach for the Watershed" program. This program aims to teach students about their watersheds and the Great Lakes. The students were toured around GreenHouse grounds and received Earth-related goodies. 5th grade biology students from the same school were led by Herman Miller employees in conducting a stream study at Stu Visser Trails. They identified samples and learned to be good environmental stewards.
