At Risk funds provided tutoring services to students enrolled in all math courses through the Math Empowerment Center (MEC). Full and part time faculty were assigned to staff the MEC to provide assistance to students visiting the Center during the Fall and Winter semesters as well as the Spring and Summer sessions. In addition, three staff were assigned to provide support to the faculty and to serve as tutoring assistants. Math tutoring software was also purchased for installation in existing computer stations in the MEC for use by students as a supplement to classroom instruction.
A portion of the grant was also used to provide access to Blackboard for all students. Blackboard is the course management system used by MCC faculty to deliver instruction and instructional supplemental material to students in both e-Learning and on-ground courses.

At Mid Michigan Community College, one of our primary ambitions is to prepare developmental students for college success. This year we have continued to experience growth in the number of students using Academic Support Services. The course English 098 was developed and is run through the ASC to help foster the growth of students reading abilities. Along with many other projects, our accomplishments also include the incorporation of the College Student Inventory (CSI) assessment. This assessment will help the Retention Coordinator, advisors, and ASC staff to be proactive by identifying at-risk students before registering for classes.

3. Summary of Accomplishments (Limit of 10 lines)
The college has added four full-time faculty in the developmental studies department, thus increasing the percentage of English and math sections taught by full-time instructors. Outcomes assessment data show an increased number of students meeting the objectives for introductory algebra since the implementation of the Hawkes Learning System. Adding pre-algebra to the math sequence has resulted in more accurate placement of students in the math sequence and increased success in introductory algebra. The faculty have formalized the study skills component of all developmental classes and invested in professional development activities for its part-time faculty in how to incorporate study skills into the curriculum. The department is revitalizing its Achieving Academic and Personal Success course.
