

12. What methods have been used by other states or countries to set renewable targets?

Renewable energy targets can be the result of compromise between parties desiring different target percentages. Another approach identified is to model different renewable target scenarios and select the scenario that meets the criteria most important to the parties.