Through the generous support of the Abrams Foundation, the Library of Michigan has digitized genealogical material and making it available online at: <http://seekingmichigan.org/>. The first resource to be digitized is one of our most heavily used and genealogically significant collections, the 1897-1920 Michigan death records. Here are some additional details about this collection, now available online:

Michigan Death Records, 1897-1920

- Nearly 1,000,000 records
- Free!
- Images and searchable index
- Statewide collection
- Available at <http://seekingmichigan.org/>

The death records are an integral part of a larger web site - Seeking Michigan - a free and fully searchable community of Michigan historic/heritage collections. Utilizing genealogical source material from both the Library of Michigan and the Archives of Michigan, this site will be an online destination for Michigan researchers, as both the Library and Archives will continue to add digital content in the future.

Additional collections available at Seeking Michigan include: Civil War Service Records, Michigan Polish Americans, and WPA Property Inventories. Are you seeking Michigan ancestors? You could find them at Seeking Michigan: <http://seekingmichigan.org/>.
