PRACTICE TRANSFORMATION COLLABORATIVE

The PCMH Initiative 2017 Practice Transformation Collaborative is an ongoing forum for participating practices to collectively work towards continuous practice transformation. MDHHS has teamed up with the Institute for Healthcare Improvement to bring PCMH Initiative Participants the opportunity to engage in an interactive collaborative space, complete with team-based learning activities to support transformation related to Clinical-Community Linkages and the practice transformation objective that each Participant chose during the 2017 application process. The Practice Transformation Collaborative will provide a series of opportunities for engagement including face-to-face learning sessions, bi-monthly peer coaching webinars, and monthly action period teaching webinars. See the upcoming dates for each in the column to the right.

Who Should Participate:

This optional collaborative learning network is open to all Participating Practice and Physician Organization teams. Participation will be most effective if it's as part of a team, including key members representing:

- Clinical Leadership
- Administrative Leadership
- Providers, including Care Managers/Coordinators
- Practice Coaches/Consultants
- Patient Representative
- Other key staff in achieving practice change

It is important to keep in mind that an ideal team will include both key decision makers, and "boots on the ground" staff members.

Notes:

- It will be important to have the same core team members attend all Learning Sessions.
- PO teams are encouraged to include a few member practice representatives for face-to-face sessions, while virtual sessions could benefit from broader member practice participation.
