

I have read through this proposal. Since the inside wiring and telephone systems are now deregulated, how would Carr know where a customer would locate his telephone in a building that had a ground floor or upper floor? The customer could even move the telephone to another location, another building, and we wouldn't necessarily even know that has happened. We do not have any businesses that would qualify under the outline, (proposal).

Just curious about this after reading k) below.
