

GRAND RAPIDS PUBLIC MUSEUM

Bodies Revealed Exhibit

Wednesday, May 4 from 6-10 p.m.
Exhibit open only for conference attendees.
No admissions fee.

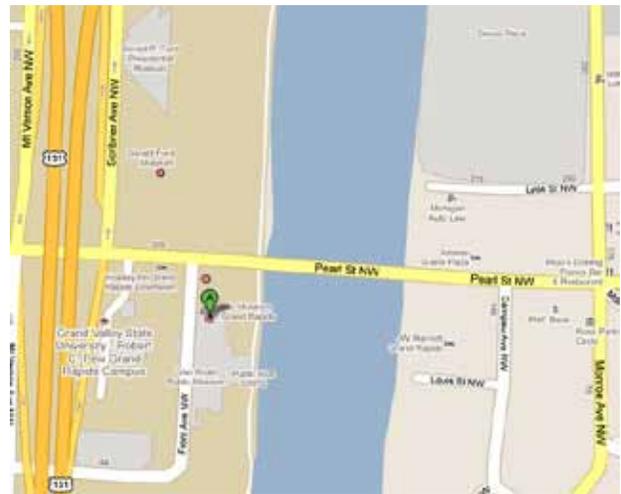

Where: Grand Rapids Public Museum
272 Pearl Street NW

When: May 4 from 6-10 p.m.

About a 5 minute walk from the DeVos
One block west of the Amway on Pearl Street

On Display Bodies Revealed

In this phenomenal exhibition about the amazing and complex machine we call the human body, more than a dozen full body human specimens and hundreds of organs are respectfully displayed to tell the story of the miraculous systems at work within each of us. With a reverent, academic approach, this display allows people of all ages to more closely observe the skeletal, muscular, nervous, digestive, respiratory, reproductive and circulatory systems, and to absorb information normally reserved only for medical professionals.

Public Museum – Background

The Grand Rapids Public Museum is among the oldest history museums in the United States. It has established itself as a premier educational institution in the area, and continues to fulfill this role for West Michigan today.

While touring the museum, visitors can explore historical exhibits through a multitude of hands-on, interactive, video, and still displays.

Current exhibits include: Bodies Revealed, 1928 Spillman Carousel, Anishinabek: The People of This Place, Collecting A-Z, Habitats, Newcomers: The People of This Place, and Streets of Old Grand Rapids, The Furniture City.