

The North Branch of the Au Sable River has the longest history of special regulations of any stream in Michigan. The details of all regulation changes are lost in the mists of time. Notable regulation events on the North Branch in the early part of the twentieth century included: 1) Establishment of an 8 inch minimum size limit on all trout species in 1901, 2) Restriction of fishing tackle to artificial flies in 1907, and 3) repeal of the artificial flies regulation in 1913. From 1929-48, all tackle types were permitted on the North Branch. The harvest limit was 15 trout per day and the minimum size limit was 7 inches for all trout species. The history of regulations from 1949 through 2005 is summarized in the table below. During this time many long-term evaluations of fishing regulations were conducted. Both fish populations and angler harvest were monitored. Fish population estimates were conducted for many years in various river reaches between the southern Otsego County line and Kellogg Bridge.
