“Your baby did not pass the hearing screening test today. This does not tell us for sure that your baby has a hearing loss but it does tell us that more testing is necessary. This is because hearing loss, mild to profound, in one or both ears can affect your baby's language development which can seriously impact their lives, and cannot be detected by doctors or the average person by just looking at the ears. The only way to know for sure is to have more hearing tests. Most of the time, everything is fine, but sometimes it is not. It is very important to know for sure. Here is some written information that may answer some of your questions. I would be happy to help you schedule an appointment for follow-up testing. Let's do that now!”
