Training, Recruitment and Academies Move Forward With Safety Measures in Place

As is true for students across the state, classes for new corrections officers joining the department this summer needed to operate differently than they ever have before. With COVID-19 continuing to roll through Michigan, the department, and its Training and Recruitment sections, were challenged with finding ways to hire and train new officers while adhering to measures designed to protect the health of new officers, training staff and their families. Recruits and training staff were issued face masks to wear at all times, and they were screened for signs of illness at the start of each day with temperature checks and questions about their health. Sanitation and cleaning was enhanced in classrooms and training spaces were disinfected multiple times a day. In the Upper Peninsula, classes took place in the auditorium of the Kinross training facility to keep everyone socially distanced and some instructors taught courses remotely. Further south, in the Lower Peninsula, where numbers of positive cases in the community were higher, recruits had a hybrid of virtual and classroom learning. Even with the challenges of COVID-19 and new measures, more than 100 new officers successfully graduated from the Lloyd Rapleje Academy Class in late August and early September. Efforts to bring on the next generation of corrections officers haven't ended there, and the department is poised to hire more than 950 new officers in the next year.

Meeting a Need

Before COVID-19 struck the state, the department's vacancy numbers, or number of open positions for corrections officers had decreased to below 600. The department was planning to hire close to 200 new officers in its March academy, but those plans were disrupted by the onset of the virus and the spring academy was cancelled. But a global pandemic and a halt on the spring academy didn't mean recruitment work had stopped. Over the next few months, training and recruitment staff set a plan in place to adopt new methods to hire and train new officers. Staff across the department were pulled in to assist in going through files, interviewing applicants and to help with PT tests. Laptop computers were procured for those in the academy to use, rather than large binders of written material, which allowed officers to begin their coursework from home in the Lower Peninsula before coming together for in-person instruction. Having many new officers in the academy also presented difficulties training staff had to work through, especially for the Lower Peninsula classes, which was restricted to only having 10 people together in one room for the summer academy and 25 for the fall academy. That made finding locations with the right layout and enough space to have multiple rooms for smaller groups a challenge. The training team pressed forward and found a resourceful solution that worked, operating out of multiple rooms in a conference center and at an athletic facility. Launching virtual classes for the first time also wasn't without its hurdles. In the Lower Peninsula the first portion of the academy was held virtually with recruits completing course work and PT from home. Internet access was not reliable for some, others faced distractions at home or technical difficulties. Ultimately, the class pulled through. "As the academy progressed, staff found different ways to accomplish what we needed to do," said Chris Schweikert, New Employee Training Supervisor for the southern region academies. Trainers modified their approach for virtual learning and worked hard to keep the class connected to each other and to their goal. That hard work wasn't lost on Dustin King, a new corrections officer at Michigan Reformatory who graduated from the southern region academy class. "They've done a phenomenal job," Officer King said, adding that he considered his trainers the best educators he has had. "I don't feel like we have missed out on a single piece of information because of the difference between a virtual and in-person academy."

In the Upper Peninsula, social distancing meant team building moved more slowly than usual, but by the time the academy approached its end, recruits had developed a strong camaraderie, said Dennis Mesnard, Human Resources Manager for Northern Region New Employee Training. "We had a motivated, tight-knit group when we were done," Mesnard said. "They become like family." The strong emphasis the department placed on recruitment puts the MDOC on a path to continue lowering the officer vacancy rate, which currently is 11.8 percent, compared to other states where vacancies are as high as 20 and 30 percent. While the problem is not unique to Michigan, it makes it no less of a challenge. The department's recruitment team adapted their processes to continue to bring on new officers, said Recruitment Manager LaChelle Fuller. Interviews are conducted virtually and pre-hire fitness testing is done with screening, disinfecting and social distancing measures in place, she said. Many paper materials that were previously handed have moved to electronic files.

Fuller credited the recruitment team for their hard work to make adapted hiring procedures a success.

“They have done a great job with all of the changes and challenges,” Fuller said.

Moving Forward

Even the graduation ceremonies were adapted to meet today’s health and safety needs. For the first time, the department organized and held two part-virtual graduation ceremonies to celebrate its newest officers joining the department.

Recruits, administrators and staff members remained masked for the in-person portion of the socially-distanced ceremony while friends and family tuned in on Facebook Live. Now, the work continues to prepare the fall class of officers.

The newest Upper Peninsula class began Sept. 21 with 33 officers and the Lower Peninsula class will start on Oct. 5 with an estimated 150 officers. Day One will begin with COVID-19 tests for recruits to help prevent any potential spread of illness.

“We ran successful programs and that’s what counts,” Mesnard said. “We prepared recruits to do the jobs they needed to do. They were all well-prepared academically and for the physical aspects of the job.”

When Micheala Spiessl and Jacob Sundlin reflect on what it means to be a corrections officer, the same word comes to mind – Honor. “To me being a corrections

Officer Spiessl

Officer Sundlin

great honor to be part of the Department of Corrections. It’s an honor to be doing what I’m doing.”

Both graduated from the Upper Peninsula’s Officer Recruit Training Academy on Friday and will be heading to their respective facilities for eight weeks of on-the-job training. Sundlin, a new corrections officer at Alger Correctional Facility who was also the class speaker and an award winner, said working in corrections has felt like his calling.

“My motivation during the academy was the impact I can hopefully have on others, and the ways I’ll be able to support my family through this and get involved in the community,” Sundlin said. “If you take it seriously and pay attention to what is being taught, it applies to so much more than your job at the facility and can make you a better person outside of it.”

Both said they appreciated how many different career options and avenues the department offered, and said their advice to new recruits would be pay close attention to the knowledge and experience of instructors and the training offered.

“Never give up and always try to be a better officer every day,” said Spiessl, who is also currently serving in the Michigan Army National Guard.

Similarly, for years, Officer Rachael O’Connor has had an interest in the criminal justice system and helping improve the lives of others. She earned a master’s degree in criminology, a dual bachelor’s degree in criminal justice and legal studies and worked in the health care field prior to joining the MDOC.

“Here, I could do something aligned with what I always wanted to do,” said Officer O’Connor,

Officer King

who is joining the team at G. Robert Cotton Correctional Facility. “We’re here to keep everyone safe. That sticks with me. I feel like I’m doing something positive for the community.”

She said she is interested in getting to know more areas of corrections and making her career with the department. As a military veteran, Michigan Reformatory Corrections Officer Dustin King said the strong bond between officers and his fellow recruits is something that reminds him of his time with the U.S. Army and National Guard.

“I really like the camaraderie and brotherhood that comes with being in a law enforcement career,” Officer King said. He said he learned a great deal during the academy on the important role corrections officers play in the lives of offenders, guiding them in a positive direction.

Detroit Reentry Center to Close in January

Detroit Reentry Center will close in January, amid a declining offender population and improvements to programs and reentry services statewide.

“The decision to close a facility is always hard, and I realize this will be a difficult time for the staff at DRC,” MDOC Director Heidi Washington said. “We understand and value the hard work and dedication the staff have shown, and it is our hope to find places for them within the department to continue that effort.”

The 2020-21 state budget will include a $12.3 million spending cut for the MDOC related to this closure. The department will begin working immediately with staff and union leadership on bumping chains and transfer options. We aim to give as many employees as possible the opportunity to fill open positions throughout the department.

The prisoner population has declined by nearly 10 percent since March and as we looked at the operational needs of the department and the improvements made in programs offerings at facilities around the state, DRC made the most sense for closure at this time.

When the Ryan Correctional Facility was closed in 2012, the site was converted to become DRC. The initial purpose of the site was threefold: housing a small number of prisoners needing dialysis treatment, housing parolees who were transferred there directly from prison to complete additional MDOC programming before entering the community, and housing certain parole violators for additional programming or sanctions.

The population has been declining at the facility for several years as over time, the MDOC discontinued the practice of sending prisoners directly to DRC for programming as the department’s program centralization efforts resulted in more prisoners completing programming prior to their earliest release date. The MDOC also adopted additional evidence-based responses to non-violent parole violations, reducing the number of offenders serving sanctions at the site. While the WRAP program for probationers was added to the site, the overall census at the site declined from roughly 950 in 2015 to less than 430 at the end of 2019.

The department is developing appropriate alternative placements for these prisoners, as well as the WRAP program.

The dialysis equipment and the prisoners needing the treatment will be moved to the Woodland Center Correctional Facility. The MSI operation at DRC will be moved to Parnall Correctional Facility.

When the COVID-19 pandemic hit the state, the MDOC further reviewed our processes for non-violent parole violators and discontinued the use of this site for this population. Those violators will be sent to a different facility with this closure.

All of these improvements to department operations and changes has led to the current prisoner population of DRC to be roughly 70.

Because of this, many of the employees there have been reassigned to nearby facilities to assist with staffing needs during the pandemic.

We are appreciative for all of the hard work that has been done by employees at this facility over the past eight years and we look forward to as many of those employees as possible continuing their career with the department.

As for the site itself, we do not have any immediate plans for how the facility will be used.

As we move forward, we will be providing regular updates with any news about the closure by email.

Those impacted by the closure of the Detroit Reentry Center can send their questions to AskMDOC@michigan.gov

Agent Ahmed Bazzi Named 2020 Candice Dunn Agent of the Year

Ahmed Bazzi always had a drive to help others and a desire to make a difference in his community. He was planning on launching a career in law enforcement as a police officer when in 2012, he ran into a Wayne County parole agent and the two began talking about his plans and whether he had considered corrections. That conversation influenced his path and landed him with the MDOC, where he has made the impact he aspired to.

“A career with the MDOC has given me the opportunity to do everything I ever envisioned doing in a career,” he said. “I get to help others, serve as a role model and an educator, all while playing a role in keeping the community safe.”

Bazzi was named the Michigan Department of Corrections’ 2020 Candice Dunn Parole/Probation Agent of the Year for the positive influence he has had on those under his supervision and his drive to help them succeed.

Bazzi, an Oakland County probation agent who currently works with the Adult Treatment Court, began his career with the MDOC in 2013 as a corrections officer at Parnall Correctional Facility.

“Agent Bazzi has shown a clear commitment to changing lives for the better and has made a significant impact in his time with the department,” Michigan Department of Corrections Director Heidi

Washington said. “He goes above and beyond to help bring out the best in others and exemplifies the type of person we want working for the MDOC. I am proud to have him on our team.”

He has served as a mentor to newer staff and has embraced new methods of supervision, such as Motivational Interviewing. He has made a lasting positive impact on those on his caseload, earning their respect and the respect of his partners in the courts and law enforcement. He has also focused on helping remove barriers to employment for those under his supervision and more than 80 percent of those on his caseload are employed. He earned a bachelor’s degree and became a probation agent in Oakland County in 2016. Bazzi said he was humbled to receive the award and was thankful for his colleagues and partners in Oakland County.

The award was named to honor the legacy of Candice Dunn, who also was an Oakland County probation agent and was the department’s 2017 Parole/Probation Agent of the Year. She was killed in a car accident the night she was recognized for the achievement at an MDOC Employee Appreciation Banquet.

Other nominees for Parole/Probation Agent of the Year included: Gladwin County Parole and Probation Agent Kelly Brady; Monroe County Parole and Probation Agent Ryan Cosgrove; Kent County Parole Agent William Dominguez; Macomb County Parole Agent Monique Johnson; Emmet County Parole and Probation Agent Jacob Kanine; Wayne County Parole Agent Lynette Moore; Lahser District Probation Agent Tylene Porter; Institutional Parole Agent Timothy Sahr; Calhoun County Probation Agent Chad Spencer; Branch County ICAC Agent Gwen Thomas; and Genesee County Parole Agent Tasha West.

Students Awarded Susan M. Hunter Scholarships

Congratulations to the recipients of this year’s Susan M. Hunter Scholarship, who have continued to work hard in their studies, while adapting to the changes and challenges we have been faced with during this time. The scholarship awards $1,500 to selected students who are children of correctional employees. This year, the Correctional Leaders Association received 800 applications and 40 students were selected as recipients. Congratulations to the following students, who are children of MDOC employees and received scholarship awards for 2020:

- Alexandria Reinert (child of Tuscola County Parole and Probation Agent Kimberly Reinert)
- Zuzanna Fracz (child of Women’s Huron Valley Correctional Facility Librarian Renata Fracz)
- Jake Osterhout (child of Women’s Huron Valley Correctional Facility Deputy Warden Karri Osterhout)

Highway Dedicated for Fallen Corrections Professionals

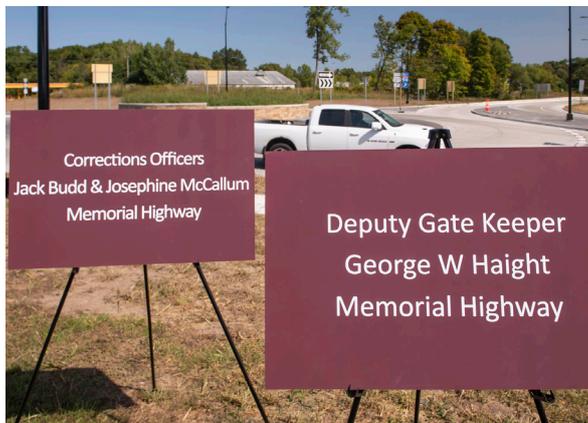

Director Washington, state lawmakers, families and MDOC employees participated in a dedication ceremony designating stretches of I-94 in Jackson County in honor of fallen corrections officers Josephine McCallum and Jack Budd and Deputy Gate Keeper George Haight.

In 1893, Deputy Gate Keeper George Haight was the first MDOC employee to be killed in the line of duty. Nearly 100 years later, in 1987, both Josephine McCallum and Jack Budd were killed in the line of duty in separate incidents, while working at the former State Prison of Southern Michigan.

Their service and sacrifice was honored during the ceremony on Sept. 21 and Director Washington paid tribute to their efforts to keep the people of Michigan safe, and the continued efforts of all corrections officers and corrections professionals to press forward through any challenge to protect our communities.

Legislation dedicating a section of I-94 to Officer McCallum and Officer Budd was signed into law in 2018 and similar legislation designating a section of the interstate to Deputy Gate Keeper Haight became law earlier this year.

We remember these fallen heroes always and their sacrifice will not be forgotten. We would also like to thank Michigan State Industries for donating the road signs for the dedication.

New MDOC Human Resources Director Named Following Promotion of Jonathan Patterson

Christine Prevo Hunnicutt will become the new Human Resources Director for the Michigan Department of Corrections following the promotion of Human Resources Director Jonathan Patterson. Patterson was named Deputy Director for the Michigan Civil Service Commission over Human Resource Training and Development. Christine Prevo Hunnicutt has 31 years of experience in state government including 17 years working at the MDOC. She started her career with the State of Michigan as a Corrections Officer and is currently the HR Director for Michigan Department of Transportation. We welcome her back to the MDOC and congratulate Jonathan Patterson on his new role. A transition date has yet to be determined.

Deputy Director Ken McKee retires following 37 years with MDOC

Correctional Facilities Administration Deputy Director Ken McKee will retire Oct. 1 following 37 years with the Michigan Department of Corrections. He was named Deputy Director in 2015, overseeing operations of the state's correctional facilities, along with the Bureau of Health Care Services.

He started his career with the MDOC in 1983 as a corrections athletic director at the former Riverside Correctional Facility. He went on to serve as deputy warden of Carson City Correctional Facility, and state deputy division administrator. In 2001, McKee became warden of Michigan Reformatory and then moved to serve as warden of Bellamy Creek Correctional Facility in 2002.

McKee is a graduate of Ionia High School and holds a degree in psychology from Central Michigan University.

He enjoys golfing, traveling to Disney World and spending time with his family.

The department appreciates his years of services and wishes him well in retirement.

Remembering Our Heroes

Department Honors Corrections Staff Who Have Passed

The MDOC community was heartbroken by the losses of three corrections employees, who spent their careers keeping our communities safe.

Kay Williams, a corrections program coordinator at Thumb Correctional Facility, passed away June 3. She had worked for the department since 1994 and worked hard to help prisoners change their lives for the better through her involvement in the facility’s garden program and its partnership with the Stone Soup Food Bank in Lapeer. Kelly Schaffer, a corrections officer at Carson City Correctional Facility was fishing on Crystal Lake on June 4, when he saw a woman fall into the water and jumped in to help her and died trying to save her. Director Heidi Washington presented Officer Schaffer’s family with a posthumous MDOC Lifesaving Award in recognition of his bravery and sacrifice.

Randy Rumler, a corrections officer at Gus Harrison Correctional facility passed away July 3 after contracting COVID-19.

Officer Rumler was a 24 year veteran of the Michigan Department of Corrections, who served his entire career with Gus Harrison Correctional Facility. Their efforts to protect the people of our state will not be forgotten.

Department Launches New Peer Support Program

As a step supporting the MDOC community, the Wellness Unit is moving forward in initiating a statewide Peer Support Program for employees, families and retirees. The Peer Support Program was a key recommendation of the EPIC Wellness Team in 2018, and we are excited to bring this vision into reality within the MDOC. The Peer Support Program will be a valuable to the Wellness Unit’s efforts to support the well-being of those who serve in our great department.

The Peer Support Program will include MDOC employees who have been nominated by their peers, thoughtfully reviewed, selected, and specially trained in peer support. The Peer Support Persons (PSPs) will be colleagues who are trusted amongst their peers, have a demonstrated genuine care and concern for others and are willing to volunteer their time to support someone in need. Peer Support services will be available to any MDOC employee, retiree, and eligible family member. The PSPs will serve as specialized volunteers to provide their MDOC colleagues accessible, tangible, and time-sensitive support through times of personal or professional difficulties.

More information about this valuable new programming will be coming soon.

Help and support is also always available at any time to employees, retirees and eligible family members by contacting the Wellness Unit at mdoc-wellness@michigan.gov or 833-DCBWELL.

CORRECTIONS OFFENDER MANAGEMENT SYSTEM COMS

COMS Trust System to Roll out soon

The COMS Project Team has been hard at work gearing up for the implementation of the COMS Trust and Financial Services module which will replace the current legacy Trust application. Implementation begins next week! Implementation will begin on September 30 and continue through October 5.

Various communications are being created to ensure staff understand how this change will impact their work. These communications will include detailed descriptions of user impact, references to training materials, and will provide support contact information so that users may ask questions or report issues. If your work involves maintaining or viewing of-fender financial data through Trust or OMNI, i.e. fee collection obligations, institutional transactions and obligations, and account statements, you will be impacted by this change. Be sure to watch for important messages related to this transition.

The COMS Project Team is looking forward to working with users to make the COMS Trust and Financial Services module implementation a success. Users should feel free to send any questions to mdoc-comsproject@michigan.gov.

“Michigan Strong” Shirts Available Through MDOC Employee Store

Just in time for fall, the Employee Store is now offering the “Michigan Strong” design on long sleeve T-shirts, crew neck sweatshirts, and hooded sweatshirts. T-shirts and other items that can be customized with the new “Michigan Strong” logo also remain available.

EPIC staff worked with Employee Store operator CVSD Busy Bees to create and offer the T-shirts, which are available to MDOC employees, retirees, and their families. The sweatshirts and shirts come in many colors and make great gifts for friends and family. They can also be customized with the department seal or facility/worksite names. For more information, or if you need assistance, please contact Cheryl Groves at GrovesC@michigan.gov.

State Employees Charitable Campaign Runs Through Oct. 23

The annual State Employees Charitable Campaign is open Sept. 21-Oct. 23. The campaign provides State of Michigan employees with the most efficient and consistent pathway possible for charitable giving and you can choose to contribute to nearly 1,000 charities which support your communities.

SECC will not have a traditional open enrollment period this year, due to challenges related to the current pandemic, however, in lieu of open enrollment, new one-time and recurring donations can be made this year through the SECC website via PayPal.

Futures for Frontliners program offers tuition-free higher education access

Gov. Gretchen Whitmer, along with leaders in education, business, labor and workforce development have launched the nation's first program offering tuition-free college to an estimated 625,000 Michiganders who provided essential, frontline services during COVID-19 Stay Home, Stay Safe orders between April – June 2020.

Futures for Frontliners, inspired by the GI Bill which provided college degree to those serving their country in WWII, offers Michigan adults without college degrees or high school diplomas who provided essential services during the pandemic a tuition-free pathway to gaining the skills needed to obtain high-demand, high-wage careers. The funding is not only available to those in the medical field, but also essential workers in manufacturing, nursing homes, grocery stores, sanitation, delivery, retail and more. “This initiative is Michigan’s way of expressing gratitude to essential workers for protecting public health and keeping our state running,” Whitmer said. “Whether it was stocking shelves, delivering supplies, picking up trash, manufacturing PPE or providing medical care, you were there for us. Now this is your chance to pursue the degree or training you’ve been dreaming about to help you and your own family succeed.”

To be eligible for the program, applicants must:

- Be a Michigan resident
- Have worked in an essential industry at least part-time for 11 of the 13 weeks between April 1 – June 30, 2020
- Have been required by their job to work outside the home at least some of the time between April 1 – June 30, 2020
- Not have previously earned an associate or bachelor’s degree
- Not be in default on a Federal student loan
- Complete a Futures for Frontliners scholarship application by 11:59 p.m., Dec. 31, 2020

Frontline workers are encouraged to visit www.michigan.gov/Frontliners to explore career opportunities, a list of local community colleges and get started on their application – even if they don’t already have a high school diploma.

You can also click here to watch a video about the program.

SNAPSHOTS

A look at life around the MDOC

Staff at Alger Correctional Facility gave generously to students in need in the community, filling 15 backpacks with school supplies for the upcoming academic year.

Staff at many facilities, including Michigan Reformatory (shown here) and Oaks Correctional Facility, came together to donate supplies including food and cleaning products to those impacted by flooding in Mid-Michigan.

MDOC Department Analyst and Honor Guard member Lora Hodges wanted to show support for staff working at Green Oaks and Woodland Center Correctional Facility, so she and her family and other members of the Honor Guard made home cooked meals for staff there.

Success Story: Bobbi Jo Jacobs

We're proud of the success of those under supervision, and of the hard work of the corrections professionals who helped put them on a positive path.

Parolee Bobbi Jo Jacobs, supervised by Tuscola County Agent Kimberly Reinert, is putting her time and talent into her work as a case manager for Fiddler's Green, a non-profit that assists veterans.

The work was recently featured in a story on ABC 12 in Flint. Click here to watch.
