

Detroit River – Lake Erie Boundary Line

For Michigan fishing regulations, the boundary line between the waters of the Detroit River and Lake Erie is an imaginary East-West line extending through the southern tip of Celeron Island to the International Border.

Google™ earth