YEAR of GIVING

Michigan Department of Corrections employees are exceptionally generous. In the last year, staff have gone above and beyond to help their communities and colleagues, donating thousands of dollars and countless hours to assisting those in need. MDOC donations to the State Employees Charitable Campaign are among the highest across state departments, with about $94,000 in payroll contributions expected to go to charities throughout Michigan in the next year. During the annual Harvest Gathering fundraiser, staff stuffed donation boxes with food for hungry families and contributed at least $4,000 to help food banks and pantries. That's in addition to the more than 130,000 pounds of food grown by offenders at facilities and field offices and donated to those in need with the help of corrections staff. Across the department, employees have volunteered their time to take children out to buy gifts during Shop With a Cop events, collected winter clothing to keep struggling state residents warm, purchased toys for needy kids, and pulled cash from their pockets to support a variety of community organizations. That standout generosity is something the Special Olympics of Michigan can attest to. In 2015, staff-led fundraising for the Law Enforcement Torch Run, which helps support the Special Olympics, swelled to $91,462. That total is up more than $11,000 from 2014, according to the Special Olympics of Michigan. The organization is grateful for the MDOC's continued involvement in the Law Enforcement Torch Run and support of its programs, said Andrea Rachko, senior development director for Special Olympics Michigan and Law Enforcement Torch Run liaison. "The increase shows the importance of MDOC being involved in our program," Rachko said.

Michigan's Special Olympics program is ranked 11th out of 111 worldwide programs, and that high standing wouldn't be possible without the growing support of corrections personnel, she said. "We couldn't be happier to work with MDOC," Rachko said.

The reasons staff choose to give are numerous. Some have personal connections to causes while others enjoy the positive feeling that comes with giving back. "I just love helping kids and seeing their joy," said Marniece Hammon, a corrections officer at Women's Huron Valley Correctional Facility, who organized a "Coats for Kids" drive at the prison that began in November.

Hammon started the drive after she noticed many children participating in a "Shop with a Corrections Officer" event in 2014 had unsuitable winter clothing and asked her colleagues with help meeting the need this year.

Staff were very supportive of the drive, which collected 59 coats and resulted in more than $500 going toward hats, gloves and scarves for children, said Hammon, who also collected 235 cases of water for Flint-area senior homes and a school with the help of her colleagues.

Lt. Charles Levens, who heads the Absconder Recovery Unit, also recognized a need earlier this year when he heard about a struggling school district in western Michigan and asked for help from the ARU. Many of the district's students were impoverished and had difficulty obtaining school supplies that the district also could not afford to provide, so the ARU raised $500 in school supplies and cash for additional materials.

"I just love helping kids and seeing their joy"

— Marniece Hammon, Corrections Officer, WHV

"The ARU chipped in with huge hearts," Levens said, adding that teachers were thrilled to receive the materials.

Carla White, a corrections program coordinator at Alger Correctional Facility, knows the enthusiasm her corrections colleagues have for helping others. White has spearheaded fundraisers to benefit Special Olympics and the Law Enforcement Torch Run and said facility staff have been incredibly supportive of the program, raising more than $10,000 for it in the last year.

"They are very giving," White said.

Here are a few more examples of recent charitable efforts across the department.

- 350 pounds of non-perishable food donated to Washtenaw County groups by SAI.
- 275 pounds of food and almost $300 donated to food assistance groups by Bellamy Creek Correctional Facility
- $1,088 raised by Cooper Street Correctional Facility for the Food Bank of South Central Michigan.
- 412 pounds of non-perishable food donated to food assistance groups by Ionia Correctional Facility.
- 265 winter clothing items collected by central office staff.
- $100 in Kroger gift cards and several Thanksgiving food baskets donated to Lansing-area families in need by the Electronic Monitoring Center.
- $1,306 and more than 1,000 snack items for children donated by Muskegon Correctional Facility.
- $400 raised for a local food pantry by the Van Buren County Parole and Probation Office.
- $300 donated to Muskegon Rescue Mission by the Muskegon Parole Office.
- $500 donated to Adopt-A-Family, local food banks and Old Newsboys by the Genesee County Parole and Probation Office.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS FROM 2015

The past year has been eventful for the MDOC. Check out just a few of the changes and notable events from 2015.

New leadership

Heidi Washington became the department's director in July, and has put an emphasis on breaking the cycle of criminal behavior. Under her leadership, the MDOC has expanded the scope of corrections from reentry to offender success.

Security and technology upgrades

More than $16 million in security and technology enhancements were completed across the state, including upgrades to video surveillance equipment, fencing, and sally ports. Rounding equipment and voice biometric systems for inmate phone calls were also installed.

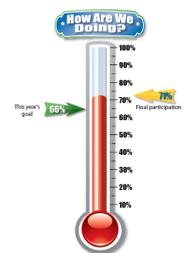

And we're mobile

1,100 parole and probation agents were equipped with mobile technology to help them access information in the field and respond more quickly.

Exceptional engagement

The MDOC had the largest positive change in engagement of any department or agency around the state, with scores climbing to 50 percent in the 2015 survey. The department also exceeded its goal for survey participation.

New hires

1,306 new employees joined the department in 2015. About 1,000 of those new hires were corrections officers who completed the reinstated state-run academies.

Kinross move

In October, the former Hiawatha Correctional Facility was reopened as the new Kinross Correctional Facility after $8.9 million in renovations were completed.

Changing Perceptions

Monroe agent works to fight human trafficking

In January, Monroe County Parole Agent Lennie Alcorn will head to the San Francisco-bay area for the Super Bowl. But the cross-country trip won't be to see the big game.

Alcorn will be traveling as part of a group that works to combat human trafficking, and will use the trip to help educate San Francisco-area businesses on how to recognize it.

Agent Lennie Alcorn

“The most important thing is knowing what to look for,” Alcorn said. “People don't understand why (victims) don't just get out.”

The group, Save Our Adolescents from Prostitution, or SOAP, visits hotels to educate staff on human trafficking and its warning signs. During the visit, they provide the hotel with bars of soap that include a hotline for victims of human trafficking.

In addition to working with SOAP, Alcorn is a member of the Monroe County Anti-Human Trafficking Coalition and has helped a number of law enforcement agencies in Michigan to fight sex trafficking in the state.

She has also worked with groups nationally and internationally since 2010, and helped launch a human trafficking prevention program in the eastern European country of Moldova in 2013 with a friend who grew up there.

Alcorn became interested in fighting human trafficking after travelling to South America and Eastern Europe on mission trips about seven years ago and hearing other individuals talk about it. When she returned home she was asked to attend meetings with human trafficking prevention groups and became passionate about the cause.

Since then, she has been invited to speak to religious organizations, the National Association of Forensic Counselors and various community service organizations about it.

“The biggest challenge is trying to get everyone's perceptions to change on how they look at victimization,” Alcorn said.

Warning signs can include tattoos or branding, drug use, changes in behavior and participation in social media sites that promote prostitution.

Alcorn, who joined the MDOC in 1994 and has been supervising sex offenders since 1997, said the knowledge field agents have about their communities and the offenders they supervise is essential to fighting human trafficking.

Victims can be uncooperative, but often it is because of fear or power and control dynamics.

“To find a solution, you have to understand the problem,” Alcorn said. “It really has to start with us. That knowledge is hugely important to being able to fight this.”

Finalists selected for new MDOC motto

Last month, the MDOC launched a search for a new motto that would best represent the department's mission and focus on breaking the cycle of criminal behavior. Staff stepped up to help, and more than 550 suggestions for a new motto were submitted. After careful consideration 10 finalists have been chosen. Finalists include:

- Focus on Success
- Promoting Positive Change
- Creating a Safe and Successful Michigan
- Protecting Communities and Changing Lives
- Promoting Success, Transforming Lives
- Committed to Success
- Improving Lives and Safeguarding Communities
- Committed to Protect, Dedicated to Success
- Dedicated Staff, Positive Culture, Successful Future
- Public Safety Through Offender Success

Now, department staff can help select a new motto, by voting for one that emphasizes our focus on offender success.

To vote, go to: <https://www.surveymonkey.com/r/GFRWRYN>

Voting is open now through Jan. 8.

The winner will be announced in January.

Inmates become peer support specialists through pilot program at Huron Valley

A group of prisoners at Women's Huron Valley Correctional facility will help provide support to fellow inmates with mental health issues after completing a new training program.

On Dec. 2, 27 prisoners at the facility participated in a graduation ceremony for a pilot program that trained them to serve as peer-support specialists.

After completing a week-long training, the women were certified by the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, and also received three college credit hours through Lansing Community College's School of Health and Human Services. The certification will allow them to work within the facility to assist other prisoners who are struggling with mental illness, and will also provide them with an avenue for employment when they re-enter the community as a Medicaid-reimbursable provider.

The pilot program was funded through a Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration grant, obtained in partnership with the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services.

Follow these simple tips to stay healthy

It's that time of year again when we all start to bundle up and bear down for the cold days of winter.

I just wanted to share a few health

Summer Laughhunn

tips that will keep us well as the temperature drops. The single, best way to prevent illness is to wash your hands frequently, especially after blowing your nose, coughing, sneezing, or being around sick people, or before you eat.

Getting the flu shot is another effective way to reduce the risk of getting sick.

So what do you do if you get sick? First, stay home! Second, check out the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention flu FAQ page.

The University of Wisconsin also published some tips to keep you healthy this winter.

- Avoid sharing objects
- Avoid touching your nose, mouth and eyes
- Get enough sleep and avoid getting "run-down"
- Reduce stress
- Use tissues for coughs and sneezes and dispose of them immediately and appropriately
- Eat right and get regular exercise
- Avoid crowds and keep your distance from people whom you know are ill
- If you are sick, avoid contact with the frail, very young and elderly
- If you are sick, stay home from work or school

Avoid holiday stress

Tips from the Office of the State Employer

The holiday season is upon us, and it can be a wonderful time filled with family, friends, festivities, and fun. Unfortunately for many, it can also be a time of stressful demands. If you would like to decrease your holiday stress, here are a few tips you can follow:

- Identify what you "want" to do vs. what you think you "must" do. Learn to say yes when you mean it and no when you don't.
- Schedule your shopping, cooking and visits and be flexible when things don't work out as planned.
- Let each family member be responsible for household cleaning, decorating, wrapping etc. Children take pride in their accomplishments – adjust your standards – others will understand.
- Set and stick to a budget. Fight commercialism by focusing on low cost traditions such as baking cookies and enjoying holiday light displays.

- Select some traditions from both sides of the family and create new ones over time.
- In addition to selecting nutritious, low fat foods, choose baked, broiled or steamed foods. Eat smaller portions at a slow pace and try to eat well before bedtime. Moderate caffeine and alcohol intake and remember to exercise.
- Opt for a positive attitude. Focusing on what you are grateful for can lift your spirits.
- Seek support: In addition to stress, the holiday blues are real. For confidential assistance contact the Employee Service Program at (800) 521-1377.

“Girls on the Rise” program at Huron Valley designed to help at-risk teens

At-risk girls will learn how to make informed life choices through a new program at Women’s Huron Valley Correctional Facility designed to help them understand the impact their decisions can have on their lives.

The Girls on the Rise program aims to educate, empower and inspire youths through education on a variety of topics with the help of prisoner mentors.

Prisoner mentors were selected for the program following an extensive interview process and have been trained in conflict resolution, effective communication, domestic violence, healthy coping, and parenting skills, among other areas. The workshops, which are held in the visiting room of the facility, began on Nov. 24 and will run through the end of 2016.

Girls between the ages of 11 and 18 are referred for the program by local courts, law enforcement agencies, probation officers, social workers, schools, or family members.

For more information contact Corrections Program Coordinator R. Slone at SloneR1@michigan.gov.

Tech Corner

Web OMNI for Law Enforcement helps agencies fight crime

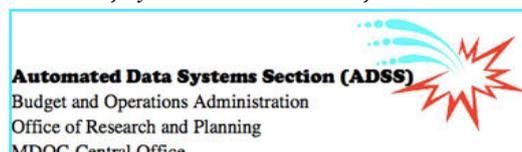

Welcome to the first installment of the Automated Data Systems Section’s Tech Corner.

In these articles we hope to feature new technology projects, provide important information you can use, and highlight recent accomplishments.

One of those recent accomplishments is Web OMNI for Law Enforcement. We know that fostering strong relationships with outside agencies is critical to our success. One key relationship is with local, state, and federal law enforcement, who rely on good data to help keep communities safe. Web OMNI for Law Enforcement is a tool developed by ADSS in collaboration with the Michigan Department of Technology, Management and Budget to share data from OMNI with law enforcement agencies around Michigan. It is a web-based application that can be accessed by partner agencies 24/7 and features offender profile information and photos in a searchable format. Check out Page 12 for a link to a story on this application in the Michigan Police Chiefs magazine. Since its inception in 2012, Web OMNI for Law Enforcement accounts have been created for 1,800 law enforcement officers in more than 150 agencies. In Michigan, there are about 600 law enforcement agencies, in addition to federal agencies. That means there is a huge opportunity for us to share our data with other law enforcement agencies in 2016.

Shelter dog programs seek donations from wish list

The shelter dog rehabilitation programs at Alger and Lakeland correctional facilities are seeking donations through Amazon.com. The programs have created Amazon Wish Lists that display products they need to help keep the dogs happy and healthy. Those interested in supporting the programs can click on the links for Alger’s wish list, or Lakeland’s wish list to shop for pre-selected items and make the purchase using their own account. No financial information is disclosed through the transactions.

Cell Block 7 Museum launches new project

The Cell Block 7 Museum will offer special name plates to honor or memorialize a loved one, or commemorate a special life event. The plates can be placed above the cell of the purchaser’s choice in the museum. Each plate can accommodate two lines with a maximum of 16 characters per line.

Plates are $150 for the lower level and $50 for upper levels of the museum.

For more information, contact the Cell Block 7 Museum at (517) 745-6813.

Law Enforcement Torch Run holds conference in January

The 2016 Law Enforcement Torch Run Kick Off Conference will be held Jan. 14 and 15 at Grand Traverse Resort and Spa in Acme, Mich.

The conference celebrates the past, present and future of the program. There is no cost to attend.

MDOC using Nixle to share information

The Michigan Department of Corrections will be using a new community notification system to provide real-time information via text, email and social media to employees and the public.

The department is using Nixle, a mass communications platform, to share alerts regarding emergency situations, visiting hour changes, training exercises, and other important events.

Anyone can sign up to receive alerts, including staff, residents, schools, local governments and businesses.

Alerts can be targeted geographically or sent statewide, and can be delivered via text, email, voice messages, the internet, social media and the Nixle mobile app.

The service is free, secure, reliable and easy to use. More than 700 users are already signed up for alerts from the MDOC.

Follow one of these steps to sign up:

- Text your zip code to 888777 from your mobile phone.

Or

- Go to www.michigan.gov/corrections and select the page for the correctional facility in your area to register via the Nixle Widget.

Or

- Go to www.nixle.com and select 'Resident Resources' to sign up.

Those who register will receive a confirmation text to their mobile device. Users may also customize their alert settings by going to www.nixle.com and creating a user profile.

The MDOC joins more than 8,000 agencies around the country that use Nixle for community engagement and emergency communications. Nixle is partnered with Nlets, the International Justice and Public Safety Network, for data security, as well as the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children, the National Blue Alert Network and Google.

Watch for more information about facility-level use of Nixle at your work locations.

Corrections officer continues to recover from serious injuries

On Dec. 3 a corrections officer at Michigan Reformatory was severely injured when he was assaulted by a prisoner.

He suffered a significant head injury and continues to recover at a local hospital.

MDOC staff have pulled together to support their injured coworker, and on Dec. 8, Michigan Reformatory hosted a hot dog and chilli fundraiser to help his family. Food was supplied by facility staff and the event raised more than $2,000.

MDOC Director Heidi Washington, Deputy Director Ken McKee and many of the officer's colleagues and friends in corrections also have visited his family at the hospital.

Though his condition is improving, visits have been limited due to the serious nature of his injuries and his family has asked for privacy as he heals.

We hope for a quick recovery for the officer and will share additional updates as they become available.

New housing unit opens at Women's Huron Valley

Women's Huron Valley Correctional Facility opened a new open-bay style housing unit in December.

On Dec. 2, 53 inmates moved into the new housing unit.

It includes ADA-compliant restrooms and each bay will hold eight inmates.

The Extra Mile

MDOC staff go beyond the call of duty to help others

Officer J.W. Smith

J.W. Smith, a corrections officer at Muskegon Correctional Facility, was honored for his consistent professionalism and superb customer service with a Symbol of Excellence Coin. Warden Sherry Burt recognized Smith for his hard work, positive attitude and helpful disposition while working at the facility's front desk. Smith is fair and consistent with visitors, and the facility has received several compliments about his friendly demeanor. He regularly projects a positive image of the Department of Corrections and Muskegon Correctional Facility.

Baraga Correctional Facility Sgt. Shawn Minerick was recognized for his contributions and commitment to the department and his community with a Symbol of Excellence Coin. As a control center sergeant, Minerick is responsible for day-shift payroll and scheduling staff.

He is also a member of the MDOC Honor Guard, Recruitment Team, and Baraga Correctional Facility's Emergency Response Team, and additionally serves as the junior varsity football and basketball coach for LAnse Area Schools. He displays a clear dedication to the department and his community.

Sgt. Shawn Minerick

Ray DeMaertelure

Absconder Recovery Unit Investigator Ray DeMaertelure was awarded a letter of commendation from the 2015 U.S. Attorney's Law Enforcement and Victim Assistance Awards and the U.S. Department of Justice for his efforts to help apprehend a fugitive drug dealer. He was instrumental to the investigation by the U.S. Marshal Service's West Virginia Task Force. DeMaertelure was diligent in conducting surveillance and helping with witness interviews, leading up to the arrest of the offender, who has been sentenced to 30 years in federal prison.

Oncology clinic opens at Duane Waters Health Center

After almost a year of preparation, the MDOC Oncology Clinic at Duane Waters Health Center opened its doors for inmate patients on Dec. 1. The clinic, which held its grand opening on Nov. 6, will provide a place for inmates to receive chemotherapy and other infusions, reducing the cost of hospital visits and medical runs for the department. The clinic will operate on Fridays and has six chairs for infusion therapies. Chemotherapy drugs will be shipped overnight from Medical Services of America. The American Cancer Society has also helped stock the clinic with educational materials inmates can access while receiving chemotherapy treatment.

Baldwin, MI 49304

Dear Lake County RRP,

On behalf of the Lake County Department of Health and Human services, we would like to thank you for your generous donations of handmade blankets created by your staff and clients. It was obvious the care and attention given to these hand crafted items! Not only were the blankets beautiful, but they received many bids during our silent auction!

As you are aware, all of the funds that are earned through our little fundraiser and bake sale will be donated to the Bread of Life Food Pantry here in Baldwin, benefitting those in the community with emergency food needs. The food pantry serves in excess of 50 families a week with emergency food and all donations are welcomed. The funds earned from your donation will be used to purchase food for the food pantry to help local families in need.

Your commitment to helping our community is sincerely appreciated by the entire community. Thank you again for your generous support.

Corrections Quiz

Which correctional facility opened in December 2001?

Send your answer to Holly Kramer at KramerH@michigan.gov. The first person to answer correctly will receive a congratulatory shout out on MDOC social media, and the answer and winner will be published in the next edition of the newsletter.

November Quiz Recap

Question: How many members make up the Parole Board? Bonus points if you can name them.

Answer: 10

They are:

- Kevin Belk
- Abigail Callejas
- Anthony King
- Nancy Martin
- Barbara Sampson
- Brian Shipman
- Sonia Amos-Warchock
- Jerome Warfield
- Sandra Wilson
- and Chairman Michael Eagen

Congratulations to Tena Rath, a departmental technician in the Women’s Huron Valley Correctional Facility Records Office for being the first to answer the November quiz question, and to Laci Grembowski, Records Office supervisor at Carson City Correctional Facility for being the first to name all 10 members.

A look at life around the MDOC

Alger Correctional Facility staff cleaned a three-mile stretch of M-28 east of Shingleton. The highway was adopted by staff in 2003.

The Prisoner Benefit Fund at Central Michigan Correctional Facility voted unanimously to donate $500.00 towards the Christmas for Our Troops fundraiser. Donated funds were sent to the American Legion Post 334- Ithaca, where they will be used to purchase needed items for our troops and assist with the cost of postage.

Thumb Correctional Facility conducted a drone-preparedness drill in November with the help of Michigan State Police.
