ABOUT THE PRESENTER

Nancy has been successful with challenging children for over 30 years. From this experience she has developed effective tools and strategies that have gained her respect as a leader and trainer in therapeutic parenting both in the United States and internationally. Parents love Nancy because she speaks heart to heart with compassion and humor. She also sends parents home with a real-world plan of action. Professionals respect her because her parenting methods provide a balance of nurture and structure, essential elements of healing for children with RAD and other emotional disorders. For more information about Reactive Attachment Disorder or Nancy Thomas visit her website at: www.attachment.org.
