The Michigan Society for Infection Prevention and Control was founded in 1973 to facilitate networking and effectively broaden the knowledge base of each individual by sharing expertise, resources, and providing a collegial forum for solutions of common problems.

Mission and Vision

The purpose of the organization is to promote healthy communities through epidemiology. As a professional non-profit organization, we strive to promote, establish, and enhance the highest quality standards to reduce the potential for and the risk of infectious and non-infectious outcomes. The Society fosters this standard through formulation and implementation of current and developing guidelines, provision of education resources, dissemination of information and interaction with regulatory and legislative bodies.

Why Join?

Members receive quarterly newsletters with Michigan Department of Community Health updates and legislative activities, conference summaries and other professional issues. They also receive information on organization-sponsored seminars, workshops and semiannual conferences.

Program Overview

Michigan Society for Infection Prevention and Control (MSIPC) will be celebrating 4 decades of service to infection prevention and control at our Fall 2013 Conference. We have strived to promote education; information sharing and the use of evidenced based practices in the field of Infection Prevention and Control. In an effort to provide safe, high quality care and meet regulatory obligations in a wide variety of healthcare settings, it is imperative that infection prevention professionals have a solid foundation in a variety of related topics plus focus on new programs such as pets in our facilities and how the environment impacts our patients and staff. Fall conference will feature two days of learning through dynamic keynote speakers, informative breakout sessions, and interactive discussions with vendors at exhibits; colleagues at poster presentations and networking opportunities throughout. This program was designed for the Infection Prevention Professional in all practice settings and levels of expertise.

Overall Objectives

At the completion of this conference, the participant will be able to:

1. Discuss common infection prevention and safety considerations when developing policies for pets in the healthcare setting.
2. Identify resources for developing policies that address pets in the healthcare setting.
3. Describe concepts used in critical appraisal of scientific evidence.
4. List at least one strategy involved in application of evidence to prevent infection
5. Describe the development of “bundles” and their impact on CLABSI prevention
6. Review the process for developing a specialized vascular access team
7. Identify infection control practices required in the dialysis environment
8. Identify 5 major routes of infection transmission in dialysis
9. Discuss the issue of bedbugs in the long-term organization, including the life cycle, presentation, prevention, and control
10. Present different lab tests and their advantages and disadvantages as well as sensitivity and specificity of each tests
11. Introduce new cleaning technologies in the market and their advantages and disadvantages
12. Describe recent MDRO investigations
13. List Infection Control practices for MDRO-positive patients
14. Identify areas of a commercial kitchen that pose the highest risk for foodborne illness transmission
15. Recognize unsafe food handling practices
