Background:

In a recent survey conducted by the Michigan Department of Community Health~Oral Health Program and the Michigan Oral Health Coalition, a significant amount of dentists expressed they do not have adequate knowledge or experience to be confident in treating patients with special care needs and showed an interest in receiving more training. To assist in furthering the education of dental professionals on treating patients with special needs, the State of Michigan and the State of New York offered a continuing education webcast across each state to provide training to dental professionals on treating patients with special health care needs. This first webcast took place on July 22, 2009. The webcast was viewed at, 22 locations in Michigan, 13 locations in New York, and one location in Arizona. Due to the high interest in the webcast the two states decided to collaborate once again and host an additional webcast for dental professionals on November 19, 2009. The area of focus for the second webcast was the management of pregnant women in the dental office.

Introduction:

On November 19th, 2009, the states of New York and Michigan joined forces and offered free continuing education to dental professionals on treating pregnant women.

The course was offered as a two-hour live webcast telecasted in multiple locations in several areas around the country. The webcast included three speakers with three different topics focusing in the treatment of pregnant women in the dental office. The presentations included: Oral Health During Pregnancy and Early Childhood by Dr. Jay Kumar from the Bureau of Dental Health at New York State Department of Health, Prenatal Oral Health: Myth or Reality by Dr. Renee Samelson from Maternal Fetal Medicine at the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology in New York, and Center for Maternal Health by Dr. Steven J. Kerpen from Great Neck, NY. The webcast was viewed in 23 Michigan locations, several locations in New York and rapidly expanded into sites in Rhode Island, Hawaii, and Alaska. In Michigan, more than 515 dental professionals participated in the webcast on treating pregnant patients.

The live webcast was recorded and is available free of charge to the general public. Online access to the webcast is available at <http://mediasite.mihealth.org/mediasite/Viewer/?peid=239994c22d12432bb3e2ac5732e2c726> for one-year. The web link will also be posted on the websites for both the Michigan Department of Community Health- Oral Health Program at www.michigan.gov/oralhealth and the Michigan Oral Health Coalition www.mohc.org.

Funding for Michigan's portion of the webcast was provided by the Department of Health and Human Services Health Resources and Service Administration (HRSA)

Grants to Support Oral Health Workforce Activities (T12HP10742). Additional sponsors assisted in funding for the webcast.

Evaluation Results:

Post-webcast evaluations were analyzed from a participant survey and a host site coordinator survey. In Michigan, 425 completed and returned the survey offered at the end of the course, to make an 82.5% response rate. The course was designed to provide oral health professionals with an understanding of current concepts in dental care for pregnant women and the effects on developing fetus. Immediately following the webcast dental professionals were asked if the information obtained in the course will change the way they practice and 73% indicated that yes, the information learned in the webcast will change the way that they practice on pregnant patients. The majority (94%) of the dental professional attendees agreed or strongly agreed that the presenter was knowledgeable in the subject and 87% agreed or strongly agreed that the presenter was well prepared.

The webcast being broadcasted via Internet created some challenges for a few of the hosts of the various locations in Michigan and their attendees. With 23 site locations around Michigan, these results varied according to sites. Attendees noted that getting connected technically with all the sites needed to be done prior to the beginning of the webcast. In addition, the survey results noted that the introductions preferably would be made shorter. The majority (90%) of the attendees indicated that the facilities were conducive to learning.

When asked if the course met the attendee's expectations, 81% agreed or strongly agreed; 5% disagreed or strongly disagreed; most giving feedback of the webcast being informative. Attendees were also given the opportunity to offer suggestions for future webcast topics, and the survey results indicated most interest in the relation between systemic health and oral health followed by pain management and medically compromised patients.

Future Webcasts:

Additional webcasts will be dependant upon funding and volunteer hosts around the state.
