Inspector General Michigan Department of Health and Human Services

Alan Kimichik is Inspector General and senior deputy director of the Inspector General Administration for the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services (MDHHS). In this role, he oversees and conducts activities to prevent, detect and investigate fraud, waste and abuse in MDHHS programs, including those in the Children's Services Agency and the Aging and Adult Services Agency.

Kimichik is the longest serving Inspector General in the United States and has more than 30 years of experience in law enforcement and criminal justice programs with the State of Michigan. In that time, he has demonstrated leadership skills in developing high performing investigative organizations and implementing fraud prevention and detection programs. As Inspector General of the Michigan Department of Human Services (which later merged into MDHHS), he successfully developed and implemented a statewide fraud prevention program, resulting in millions of dollars of taxpayer savings and cost avoidance, while improving public assistance program integrity.

He is experienced in legislative and policy matters, including analysis and testimony, and he aligns effective partnerships at all levels of the law enforcement community to address fraud, waste and abuse vulnerabilities. He also is experienced in using data to direct investigative activities towards high risk vulnerabilities, resulting in effective returns on investment of time and resources.

Kimichik earned a bachelor's degree in criminal justice from Michigan State University and is a Spartan for life.
