Manual for Michigan State Documents Depository Libraries
SECOND EDITION

INTRODUCTION AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

Manual for Michigan State Documents Depository Libraries contains information about the Michigan Documents Depository Library Program as administered by the Library of Michigan, a brief history of the program, the types of publications distributed, and guidance on handling and processing depository shipments. Collection development and resources for public services are covered as well. The Manual should be used as an overview for all documents staff in Michigan involved with acquisitions, technical and public services for Michigan depository documents.

Depository Librarian Ann Marie Sanders edited the second edition of the Manual, with significant input from the following Library of Michigan staff: Bernadette Bartlett, Susan Smith, Kris Rzepczynski and Kimberly Laird. Shawn Nicholson of Michigan State University, January Wagner and Paula Kaczmarek of the Detroit Public Library provided field comments on this second edition.

THE HISTORY OF THE MICHIGAN DOCUMENTS DEPOSITORY LIBRARY PROGRAM

The state of Michigan has a long history in preserving the deliberations of its elected and appointed officials. Prior to statehood, the Legislative Council passed a resolution in 1829 directing the deposit of thirty copies of the laws and journals of Council sessions in the Legislative Council Library. In 1836, the Library was placed under the Secretary of State with "all public documents and records of the territorial government" to be filed there.

In 1840, the Secretary of State was authorized to give all library societies and institutes one copy of all state laws, journals and documents since statehood and each year following. However, the 1840s brought hard times to Michigan, and the joint resolution was repealed in 1842 due to the financial burden. The foreign exchange of documents was more successful in gaining legislative support. From 1844 to 1849, Michigan participated in the International Literary Exchange program based in Paris. During that era, documents were also occasionally sent to the British Museum.

It was not until 1859 that another state institution was designated to receive Michigan documents. In that year, monies were appropriated which authorized the State Librarian to send duplicates of the library's materials to the new Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State University). Although no specific states or institutions can be identified from reports and appropriations over the next thirty years, spotty documentation exists that suggests the state library was diligent in exchanging and depositing legislative, executive, and even Supreme Court Reports, within the state and with other states.

Until 1895 the Michigan State Library served as a library exclusively for the legislature. Public Act 28 of 1895 provided for the day-to-day management of the Michigan State Library and enhanced certain functions performed by the agency, including authorizing the state librarian to "exchange judicial decisions, statutes, journals, legislative and executive documents of Michigan, and other books placed in the care of the State Librarian for the purpose of exchange with the libraries of other states and the government of the United States." Under this broad wording, copies of state government publications were deposited at the Library of Congress and libraries throughout Michigan.

In February 1951 a catastrophic fire struck the Michigan State Office Building on the corner of Walnut and Kalamazoo streets. The Michigan State Office Building housed the State Library, in addition to many other agencies. The fire, which burned for 50 hours in sub-zero temperatures, required some 25,000,000 gallons of water to extinguish. Extensive damage was done to the library's collections, particularly reference materials in the state and federal documents collections. As a result, the Library of Michigan is still actively collecting both Michigan state documents and Federal documents material in an effort to close gaps in the historical collection.

By 1966 there were some 100 libraries (public, academic, school and a few out-of-state institutions) receiving documents from the state library. At that time libraries chose the state departments from which they wished to receive publications, and the Michigan State Library sent letters and made calls to agencies to get the requisite number. This arrangement created a substantial administrative burden for the state library. Following the development of the Michigan Documents Classification Scheme in 1967, the entire program underwent a thorough review to streamline the collection and distribution process.

Depository libraries still participating in the program in 1969 were polled to see if they wished to remain in the system. Since some elected to withdraw, other libraries, particularly the public academic institutions, were approached and encouraged to join the program in order to fulfill the criteria that no citizen should be more than one hour (or sixty miles) away from a depository library. Newly formed public library cooperatives were also designated in order to build on the cooperative network of public information. At the end of this process, 48 Michigan libraries were designated as state documents depositories.

A decade later it became clear that a depository statute would assist the acquisition of material for the program. In 1976, legislation was introduced in the Michigan House of Representatives, which confirmed certain aspects of the depository program already in place. Public Act 367 of 1976, introduced in September and signed into law on 23 December 1976, strengthened the program's distribution component by requiring that "each state official, state department, state board, state commission, and state agency which issues or publishes a public document [to] furnish the state library a minimum of 75 copies of each document." Colleges and state universities were required to deposit two copies of their publications with the state library.

The act also continued the exchange program between Michigan and other states first established in 1895 and affirmed the designation of depository libraries in Michigan, specifying the inclusion of state university libraries and selected public, school and college libraries. Libraries already involved in the program could retain their depository designation if they agreed to make the documents accessible to citizens of the state without charge. The law further required the state library to keep one copy as a "permanent reference copy" and to continue to deposit one copy with the Library of Congress. The order of distribution to the depository libraries was also established at this time, based upon a priority ranking of those libraries able to provide the most service to the largest number of citizens.

Public Act 367 of 1976 also required the preparation and issuance of quarterly and annual checklists of public documents. This practice continues today as described in the sections about the checklist but is altered by the availability of electronic databases.

In 1983, the Library of Michigan was established under Public Act 540 of 1982. The law retained the language regarding the library as the depository for public documents and as the administrator of the state depository program while placing the library under the authority of the Legislative Council. The law also codified the modern-day functions of the state library agency and cited many of the duties and responsibilities of the State Librarian.

In 2001, the Legislature enacted Public Act 62 of 2001. This legislation moved the Library of Michigan from the legislative branch to the newly formed Department of History, Arts, and Libraries under the Executive branch. Section 9, regarding the depository library program, remained largely untouched under this revision. While the statute requires that agencies deposit

75 copies of publications with the library for distribution, the Library is able to complete distribution with only 65 copies and typically only requests that many. It is under this legislation that the program operates today. Copies of the various public acts that outline the depository program are included in Appendix A of this manual.

ADMINISTRATION OF THE MICHIGAN DOCUMENTS DEPOSITORY LIBRARY PROGRAM at THE LIBRARY OF MICHIGAN

The Library of Michigan is the permanent repository for the Michigan documents under the depository library program. Its collections contain territorial, state, executive, and legislative publications dating back to 1805. The current law pertaining to state produced documents requires that each state agency deposit 75 copies of any document printed for public distribution. Ideally, the issuing agency automatically sends copies of its publications to the Library of Michigan as soon as they are printed. In practice, the Documents staff at the Library of Michigan is proactive in pursuing these valuable materials, by contacting agencies, scanning departmental newsletters for notices of publication, and conducting follow-up research on any un-owned titles requested by libraries and patrons. Visits to state agencies to promote awareness of the depository program are also conducted on an ongoing basis.

Out of the 65 copies currently requested, the first three copies of all titles received for depository distribution are placed in the Library of Michigan. The Official Collection (first or single copy received) contains copies of any and all editions of a title and does not circulate. The Circulating Collection contains the second and third copies, and these copies may be borrowed by any citizen or loaned to any library through interlibrary loan. The Public Services Division of the Library of Michigan provides reference services to state government and the citizens of Michigan. Titles may be verified through ANSWER, the Library's online catalog, through OCLC, or by contacting Library of Michigan staff.

Although the Library of Michigan's Law Library is not officially a depository library, it collects administrative decisions from several state agencies. The Michigan Tax Tribunal Opinions and the Michigan Civil Rights Commission Decisions are examples of material collected. The Law Library draws on these special materials to respond to queries from all Michigan libraries.

The Library of Michigan's Technical Services Division is responsible for a number of functions related to the operations of the Michigan documents depository library system. The Documents team solicits, receives and distributes publications to libraries, prepares shipping lists, affixes special notes and responds to claims. Assignment of classification numbers and creation of MARC cataloging records are performed by the Cataloging section. Full MARC records for Michigan documents are added to ANSWER and to OCLC and the OCLC numbers for the bibliographic records are added to the shipping list. Although there is no officially designated source for the cataloging of Michigan documents, as most titles are received at the Library of Michigan first, the Library does virtually all cataloging. The section, "Overview of Michigan Documents On Answer" at Appendix B, gives a full explanation of what one can expect to locate in ANSWER and in OCLC.

Documents staff also prepares the Michigan Documents checklist, which first began in 1952. This tool lists all of the publications of state government agencies received at the Library of Michigan during the stated reporting period. Published quarterly until 1995 with annual cumulations, the checklist is now an interactive service offered through the Library of Michigan's web site, <http://www.libraryofmichigan.org>. The checklist is updated monthly with annual printed cumulations each year. For a complete listing and historical perspective for this publication see the section Michigan Documents Reference Sources in this manual.

The Library of Michigan is empowered to promulgate the rules and regulations of the Michigan Documents Depository Library Program. The Depository Librarian is responsible for this function and also interprets and revises the "Procedures for the Michigan Documents Depository Libraries," which is included in this manual. The Depository Librarian also provides technical support by visiting depository libraries, conducting orientations for new document coordinators, planning periodic continuing education programs for depository library staff, and authorizing off-site housing of Michigan documents.

The Library of Michigan Depository Library Services Directory is distributed with the Manual as a separate item and is also available through the Library of Michigan web site at <http://www.libraryofmichigan.org/services/deplibserv.html>. The Depository Library Services Directory is arranged by type of service and can be used when contacting the Library of Michigan by telephone or electronic mail. The Directory is updated periodically and each revision is then sent to all depository libraries.

REQUIREMENTS OF MICHIGAN DOCUMENTS DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES

The Michigan documents depository library network is designed to make Michigan government publications readily accessible to all citizens of Michigan. Regular distribution of Michigan documents by the Library of Michigan to designated document depository libraries and publication of the Michigan Documents checklist are the primary methods of accomplishing this goal. The following delineates the protocols that must be followed to satisfy the criteria for being a Michigan Documents depository library.

Libraries that are designated depository libraries are expected to:

- I. Receive, house, and provide public service for Michigan documents for a minimum of five years from the date of receipt.
- II. Provide convenient public access to documents at no charge.
- III. Implement loan and interlibrary loan procedures to ensure availability of documents.
- IV. Promote the use of Michigan documents to the public.
- V. Designate a permanent staff member as Michigan Documents contact and coordinator.

To achieve these ends, the following protocols are established:

I. Documents Access and Organization

All Michigan Document depository libraries will be open to the public for the free use of depository publications. Each depository library shall organize its collection of Michigan documents to ensure easy identification, access and service to state publications. Inclusion of Michigan documents in the library's online catalog is highly recommended. A separate Michigan Documents Collection is recommended only if the library does not or cannot include all Michigan documents in its catalog. Libraries that include only a portion of Michigan documents in their catalog may wish to utilize a vertical file-type arrangement to provide access to the remaining documents in the collection. Depository libraries are not required to use any specific arrangement or system of classification for state documents. The Library of Michigan uses the Library of Congress classification system to catalog its Michigan documents collections. The Library provides access to its collections through its online catalog (ANSWER), OCLC, and also publishes the Michigan Documents checklist to aid in access to state government information. In the past, the Library of Michigan utilized a Michigan Documents classification scheme, which is no longer in use. Information regarding the Michigan Documents classification is available in the first edition of this manual.

II. Documents Acquisition and Retention

All non-permanent Michigan documents depository libraries will retain all depository documents for a minimum of five years from the date of receipt, with the exception of duplicates, superseded titles and ephemera. Ephemeral items are identified on the shipping list included in each package of Michigan documents received by a depository library. The permanent Michigan documents depository libraries at the University of Michigan, Wayne State University, Detroit Public Library, and Michigan State University, retain all depository documents permanently with the exception of duplicates or superseded titles. As the repository for Michigan documents, the Library of Michigan permanently retains Michigan documents in the Official Collection.

III. Loaning Documents

Depository libraries will establish circulation and interlibrary loan policies that ensure wide access to state documents and are consistent with their procedures for other materials. Cooperative library headquarters have a particular responsibility to make documents available on loan to member libraries.

IV. Promotion of the Use of Documents to the Community

The single most effective method of promotion for state documents is to include the documents in the library's online catalog. Depository libraries are also expected to promote the use of state documents by using them to respond to reference queries, and it may be useful to issue reading lists of important documents in high interest areas. Efforts should be made to increase the visibility of the depository materials by including them in publications and in announcements that promote the library and its other resources.

V. Staffing

One person on the permanent staff of each depository library will be designated as the coordinator for Michigan documents reference and correspondence. If staff responsibilities change, the Library of Michigan must be promptly informed of the new coordinator's name and contact information.

PROFILES AND CATEGORIES OF DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES

Repository

The Library of Michigan is the repository for state agency publications and therefore maintains Official and Circulating Collections. The Official Collection dates back to pre-statehood with the earliest recorded document published in 1805. All editions in the Official Collection are retained permanently and do not circulate in order to satisfy preservation concerns and to insure that a copy is always available. Items from the Circulating Collection may be borrowed by anyone with a valid Library of Michigan circulation card or may be requested through interlibrary loan.

Designation of Depository Libraries in Michigan

The State Librarian designates depository libraries, on the recommendation of the Depository Librarian. Presently, 52 depository library designations are authorized for the Program, and all designations are filled. Those 52 are comprised of the Library of Congress, 32 public libraries, 17 academic institutions, 1 law library, and 1 cooperative library. The Library of Michigan attempts to keep all designations filled, in order to fully serve the citizens of the State of Michigan. A list of the state documents depositories may be found in Appendix C. This listing is also maintained on the Library of Michigan web site at <http://www.libraryofmichigan.org/services/midoclibs.html> and is updated annually in the Directory of Michigan Libraries.

Should a library wish to leave the depository program, it must contact the Depository Librarian at the Library of Michigan. Often, libraries re-consider their depository status and choose to remain in the program after receiving further training and assistance from Library of Michigan staff. In addition, relinquishing depository status requires the approval of the State Librarian and that arrangement be made for the retention and/or transfer of depository materials to a new location.

Categories of Depositories

The depositories are divided into two categories: regular and permanent depository libraries. Regular depository libraries may discard duplicates, superseded titles, any titles defined as ephemeral by the Library of Michigan, and material held for five years after the date of receipt.

Collections at the four major research libraries, Detroit Public Library, the University of Michigan Hatcher Library, Michigan State University Libraries and Wayne State University's Purdy Library, are designated as permanent depository libraries and, as such, are required to permanently retain items. Permanent depository libraries may discard any duplicates or superseded titles upon receipt.

Depositories Outside of Michigan - Past and Present

The exchange of documents with other states and countries has undergone many changes over the last century and a half. In the past, the Library of Michigan honored exchange arrangements with nearly all of the states, and with national libraries in France, Japan and Great Britain. The Library of Michigan also participates in the exchange of specific titles with a number of state libraries and state law libraries, but does not receive full depository shipments from any other state. The state library agencies of Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Wisconsin receive full Michigan depository shipments. These agencies are located at the end of the order of distribution, in order to ensure that Michigan depositories receive priority in receiving any material that is available in limited quantity.

The Library of Congress is one of the oldest depositories for Michigan government publications and is sent the fourth copy of any title received for depository distribution at the Library of Michigan, in accordance with the depository statute.

For many years, the Center for Research Libraries (CRL) in Chicago was the depository for state publications from all of the fifty states. In June 1990, CRL notified state documents distribution sources that it would no longer be able to serve in that capacity. A limited number of retrospective materials are still held by CRL and are available for interlibrary loan. Other institutions that have received Michigan documents in the past include state library agencies in California, Pennsylvania, and New York and academic institutions in California and Ohio. A Michigan library, preferably in a rural or underserved area, replaces any out-of-state institution that chooses to stop receiving Michigan documents.

DISTRIBUTION TO DEPOSITORY LIBRARIES

Procedures at the Library of Michigan

Many state agencies voluntarily cooperate with the requirement to forward copies of their publications to the Library of Michigan for depository distribution. Other agencies must be made aware of the law or reminded of the requirement. Library of Michigan staff call or write agencies whose publications are not routinely submitted for the depository library program. These calls or letters are usually the result of the Library staff learning about a new title through newspaper articles, patron or library requests or agency newsletters. Depository libraries are encouraged to assist the Library of Michigan in its collection development efforts by alerting Michigan documents staff of titles that have not been added to the depository system. These notices may be e-mailed, phoned or faxed to the Library of Michigan using the Depository Library Services Directory.

When a shipment of state agency publications arrives at the Library of Michigan, three copies are added to the Library's collections. Boxes for each of the depository libraries are filled, following the priority distribution as listed in Appendix C. The Documents staff then develop a shipping list, reflecting the title, classification number, OCLC record number, and number of copies available for distribution. The shipping list is enclosed in each box, labels are affixed, and the boxes are sealed and posted. If enough copies of a title have arrived for full distribution, at least three copies are held to respond to claims.

Depository Publications: Background Information

In general, any publication printed in multiple copies by an agency that is intended for distribution beyond the issuing agency is covered by the depository requirement. This includes annual reports, general information publications (monographs), statistical publications, bibliographies, maps, posters, periodicals, and manuals. Where applicable, transmittals and supplements are also included in the program. Although less frequently prepared for public distribution, commission reports, weekly summaries and conference papers may also be supplied for the depository program. If published, legislative committee reports and committee hearings are eligible for depository distribution.

Some titles are required by law to be distributed free to specific types of users. Michigan's Department of Management and Budget (DMB) handles distribution of such material. Through this arrangement, the Library of Michigan receives a set number of copies to add to its collections and to send to depository libraries. After all distribution required by law is made, DMB is required to sell all remaining copies and cannot supply additional gratis copies to the depositories. The Michigan Manual is an example of this type of publication.

Non-Depository Publications

Not all documents created by state agencies are made available for distribution through the Michigan Documents Depository Library Program. A publication titled Management and Preservation of Michigan Government Information, jointly produced by the Library of Michigan and the State Archives of Michigan, provides further information to state agencies and other interested parties as to what types of material are included in the program. This publication is also available via the Library of Michigan web site at <http://www.libraryofmichigan.org/binary/preservation.pdf>.

Exceptions To The Distribution Of Material

There are some Michigan documents that are exceptions to the depository system and are not distributed to depositories. Some material such as memoranda, forms and applications are not collected nor distributed via the depository system at all. Most press releases, periodicals for state agency staff and meeting minutes are acquired and retained in the Library of Michigan's collections, but are not distributed to depositories. Some are available for borrowing through interlibrary loan.

About 100 audit reports are printed each year for wide distribution to citizens. In 1986, several depository libraries indicated a desire to have these materials deleted from the program. As a result, copies of the audit reports were reduced to the number of copies sufficient for the Library of Michigan collections and the Library of Congress. These reports appear on shipping lists and in the Michigan Documents checklist. Libraries may contact the Auditor General directly to obtain copies of the reports they deem useful for their clientele or borrow them from the Library of Michigan's Circulating Collection.

Agencies will often compile laws that pertain to their functions or that impact on the agency's clientele. The cost of reprinting text from the Michigan Compiled Laws must be recovered by the issuing agency. The Publications Office of the Michigan Department of Management and Budget sells these compilations, which are considered for the depository program on an individual basis. Contact the Library of Michigan staff to determine the depository status of needed publications.

Library of Michigan Policy for Partial Distribution

As mentioned above, the first three copies of a title are placed in the Library of Michigan collections. The remaining copies are distributed on a priority basis to the depository libraries until the supply is exhausted. The list of depository libraries is in Appendix C. The Library of Michigan is not authorized to purchase or photocopy/reproduce publications to fill-in inadequate supplies for distribution.

The Depository Program relies upon state agencies to comply with the legal mandates of PA 62 2001 to send copies of public documents for depository distribution. Most agencies make every effort to comply with this requirement. Some send more than 65 copies; others are unable to comply and send what they can. Hardbound, multi-colored titles are often expensive to produce and, therefore, are printed and distributed in very limited quantities. If an agency fails to include the depository program in its initial printing, the agency's supply might be depleted during follow-up, yielding only a few copies to share between the Library of Michigan collections and the depository libraries.

Some executive agencies choose to distribute certain publications directly to all libraries. If reported to the Library of Michigan, these publications are listed on the shipping list but marked as mailed under separate cover. Those agencies might also send copies to the Library of Michigan for the Michigan Documents Depository Library Program. In that case, a depository library could receive more than one copy. Depository libraries only need to keep one copy of these publications, after reviewing to make sure one copy is not a newly revised edition.

Non-Governmental Publications

Agencies and organizations will occasionally contact the Library of Michigan and request that a commercially or cooperatively published title be sent to depository libraries. Usually these publications relate in some way to Michigan activities and are frequently high quality materials. For those reasons, it is practical to include them in the depository shipments. A note on the shipping list brings these titles to the attention of depository librarians and indicates that the material may be kept according to the receiving library's collection development policy.

Publications in Electronic Format

The Library of Michigan is investigating the issues surrounding electronic documents and will continue to keep our depository libraries informed as developments arise. A list of state agency web sites is included in Appendix D.

LEGISLATIVE DISTRIBUTION SYSTEM

The Legislative Distribution System was established by the Legislative Service Bureau and is continued by the Library of Michigan in a spirit of cooperation with the participating libraries. Distribution of legislative materials to depository libraries is not mandated by the depository sections of the Library of Michigan enabling legislation, but is undertaken to assist those libraries in the system in fulfilling their missions. The following libraries are designated for legislative distribution: the Detroit Public Library, University of Detroit Mercy School of Law Library, and the University of Michigan Law Library. Directory information for the legislative depository libraries appears in Appendix C. No other libraries are eligible for inclusion in this program.

Procedure at the Library of Michigan

The Legislative Document Room maintains a box labeled for the Library of Michigan. Paper copies of House and Senate Bills, House and Senate Enrolled Bills, House and Senate Bill Analyses, Daily and Final Status of Bills, and House and Senate Journals are placed in the box by the Document Room staff. Each day a Library of Michigan courier goes to the Legislative Document Room to retrieve the materials.

These copies are then distributed between the Library of Michigan's Michigan documents collections, the Law Library, and the participating depository libraries. Documents staff perform distribution and mailing functions.

Access for Other Libraries

Other libraries wishing to receive paper copies of current specific bills, enrolled bills, public acts, daily journals, calendars or bill analyses should contact the Legislative Document Room, North Capitol Annex, P.O. Box 30036, Lansing, MI 48909-7536, 517-373-0169. One copy of any requested item will be mailed free to the requester. The Legislative Document Room is unable to fax copies of these materials. Online access to the full text of these materials is available at the legislative information web site, <http://www.michiganlegislature.org>.

A subscription to paper copies of these publications is known as a "rental box" and may be established with the Legislative Document Room. Setting up a rental box requires the subscriber to make private arrangements to pick up items placed in the box. The Legislative Document Room does not mail subscription titles to the subscriber. The Library of Michigan cannot provide pick-up and mailing services for subscribers.

GUIDELINES FOR MANAGING A MICHIGAN DOCUMENTS DEPOSITORY

The following procedures are recommended best practices. Individual libraries may wish to modify them according to their own needs and processes. Library of Michigan staff are happy to provide interpretations and assistance in developing any individual library's procedures for handling Michigan documents. Procedures covered include: Check-in of received materials, shelving, binding, cataloging information, and the disposal and weeding of documents.

TECHNICAL PROCESSING

Check-in Procedures

1. Receive and open the depository shipment and shipping list.
2. Stamp the shipping list with today's date. See Appendix E for further information on shipping lists.
3. Locate items on shipping list by matching the title of the documents in the shipment and place a check mark beside each title on the Shipping List to denote receipt.
4. Record Library of Congress classification number or other class scheme of your choice on the cover or on the title page.
5. Stamp each document with depository date stamp.
6. Security strip all documents which meet the depository library's regular tattle-taping procedure.
7. Loose-leaf publications should be secured with string, metal brackets or placed in binders.
8. Record the number of documents received in accordance with local practice.
9. Check in or catalog documents as appropriate to local practices whether in online catalog, on cards in a shelf list or entry in a database. Minimal-level records for all titles received should include call number, issuing agency, title, frequency, location, routing instructions, and binding information.
10. Make any corrections as instructed on shipping lists. A representative sample of notes appears in Appendix E.
11. Claim any item missing from shipment (refer to the following section on "Claims").
12. Retain shipping lists in chronological order for one year.

Shelving

Libraries may choose to use the Library of Congress classification provided to shelve some or all of the depository documents. They may also use another scheme such as Dewey or a locally devised system of classification.

Binding

The binding of Michigan documents should follow the regular binding procedure of the holding library for other materials.

Cataloging

Libraries are encouraged to fully catalog as many Michigan documents as possible, since cataloging increases visibility and use of the material. Documents selected for full cataloging should follow AACR2 guidelines. Full cataloging is available for all depository titles in OCLC.

Since 1995, the Library of Michigan has fully cataloged all new Michigan documents received in ANSWER and OCLC. Prior to this date, full cataloging of Michigan documents was sporadic and inconsistent. To correct this, the Library of Michigan has undertaken several projects to retrospectively catalog and reclassify all of its Michigan documents holdings. A description of the scope and status of these projects is available in Appendix B.

Disposal and Weeding of Documents

Ephemeral publications so designated on the depository shipping list and duplicates may be disposed of upon receipt by regular depository libraries according to the library's collection development policy. Otherwise, documents held for the minimum five-year retention period and which do not meet the library's individual collection development guidelines may also be discarded. Consider one of the following means of transfer prior to discarding:

- a) Offer to other libraries;
- b) Offer to private citizens, or;
- c) Donate as paper to recyclers or paper drives.

Depository libraries are not required to develop a disposal list or to seek approval for disposal from the Library of Michigan for items retained for five years or for duplicates, ephemeral, or superseded titles. However, depository libraries are encouraged to offer long runs of serials and unique or notable titles prior to disposal, to other depository libraries in the system and to the library community. Depository libraries are especially encouraged to contact the Library of Michigan if they plan to dispose of significant amounts of pre-1960 material, since these materials may be of use in closing gaps in the Library of Michigan's historical collection.

CLAIMS

Claiming (requesting copies of publications not received in a depository shipment) is an important part of the Michigan documents depository library responsibilities. Monitoring receipts and prompt claiming are necessary to keep titles up-to-date and to obtain important titles for the library's collection. Claiming is an activity that should be supervised by the Michigan documents coordinator.

Shipping List Verification

Shipping lists serve as packing slips and are used for verification of the items included in the shipment. The shipment should be opened as soon as it is received and items should be verified and checked-off on the shipping list. By comparing the shipping list with the documents received, the depository library will be able to determine whether claims for non-receipt should be made. A list of symbols and notes used to indicate the distribution status of individual titles on shipping lists appears in Appendix E.

If documents are identified as missing, titles must be claimed promptly, either through the Library of Michigan (depending upon the number of copies distributed) or requested from the issuing agency. Information on where to direct a claim to an agency is available from the Library of Michigan. All claims mailed to the Library of Michigan for non-receipt should be postmarked within 90 days (3 months) from receipt of the shipping list. The Library of Michigan maintains a 3-day response time for claims. Letters to request items from the issuing agency should be sent immediately.

When and Where to Claim

Check the shipping list to determine if a missing item was fully distributed, which indicates the Library of Michigan had sufficient copies of a document to distribute a copy to every depository. If the shipping list indicates the item was fully distributed (if there is no number or special note indicated on the shipping list) then the claim is sent to the Library of Michigan.

If a missing document was "shipped short", meaning the issuing agency provided the Library of Michigan with less than 65 copies, and if the shipping list does not indicate that limited copies are available (see Appendix E), then a letter requesting a complimentary copy can be sent directly to the issuing state agency. Contact the Library of Michigan documents staff for addresses and contact information. Letters should be sent promptly as state agencies may retain limited copies of their publications or may retain excess material for very brief periods.

If Claiming from the Library of Michigan

1. After identifying a document as missing, duplicate the shipping list and circle the missing item.
2. The Michigan documents coordinator must sign and date the claim.

3. Enclose a return address or mailing label and mail the claim to:

Library of Michigan
Technical Services Division
Michigan Documents Claims
P.O. Box 30007
717 W. Allegan St.
Lansing, MI 48909

4. Claims may also be faxed to the Library of Michigan at 517-373-9438. All faxes should include a cover sheet; address claims to Michigan Documents Claims instead of an individual staff member.
5. Responses should be received from the Library of Michigan within two weeks of submitting a claim. If a response is not received, resubmit the claim or request the title from the issuing agency.
6. Claim copies are held at the Library of Michigan for 90 days. Missing items may be requested from the issuing agency after 90 days.

If Requesting a Title from a State Agency

Library of Michigan documents staff will supply addresses and contact information for titles shipped short. Depositories should develop a letter that includes the title of the requested document and states the need to complete the library's Michigan depository collection. If the title was not supplied to the Library of Michigan in sufficient quantity to complete the depository distribution, include that information as well, as some state agencies routinely forward publication requests to the Library of Michigan. It is also helpful to include a pre-addressed mailing label. It is recommended that the library keep copies of all claims correspondence until a response is received. A sample letter follows in Part 2 of Appendix E.

RETENTION AND WEEDING POLICIES

Regular, non-permanent Michigan documents depository libraries are required to retain depository materials for five years from the date of receipt. The only exceptions to this retention requirement are duplicates, superseded titles, and ephemera. The requirements for the disposal of Michigan state documents received on deposit are specified in the Guidelines for Managing a Michigan Documents Depository Library section of the manual.

Michigan depository libraries are advised to include a section covering Michigan documents material in their written acquisitions and weeding/disposal policies, because the material requires special consideration beyond those used in evaluating general collections. Depository libraries may wish to duplicate the section on the disposal of Michigan documents from "Guidelines for Managing a Michigan Documents Depository Library." in their weeding policy to remind staff of the special nature of this material. As well, depository libraries may prefer to make disposal of state documents solely the responsibility of the Michigan documents coordinator to ensure that material is not inappropriately discarded.

A useful tool in weeding Michigan Documents collections is the ‘Suggested Core List of Michigan State Documents’ which appears in Appendix F of this manual. The core list identifies useful titles of enduring value that are standard sources regardless of the size or information needs of a particular library.

Materials That May be Weeded

Ephemeral publications that are sent to depository libraries include announcements of various state government activities, dated posters or announcements of publications and are so noted on the shipping list. Ephemeral publications may be kept or discarded upon receipt by regular depository libraries, according to the individual library’s collection development policy.

Titles that are superseded may be withdrawn. Revised, reprinted or cumulated editions also fall into the superseded category. Each library must use its own discretion in deciding to retain or delete the earlier issuances or individual pieces.

Considerations For Weeded Documents

When weeding state documents, library staff should consider whether there are other possibilities in the institution for the material. A title that is low use in the circulating collection may have higher use in a local history collection. A pamphlet in a non-circulating reference collection may find new usefulness as a circulating item.

Also consider whether the material would be easily accessible if someone were to request it after it was discarded. There are five permanent depository libraries in the State of Michigan: The Library of Michigan, Detroit Public Library, Michigan State University, the University of Michigan and Wayne State University. If your patrons have easy access to one of these collections, not having it in your collection may not be a hardship. Keep in mind that the collections are concentrated in the lower half of the state, leaving many citizens of the state quite a distance from a permanent collection of Michigan material.

It is especially important that libraries far removed from one of the state's research institutions consider the availability of a given source through interlibrary loan before making a decision to dispose of the material. For instance, there is the possibility that the title under consideration for disposal may not circulate in libraries retaining it. Many libraries will not circulate legal resources and historical materials.

Libraries discarding Michigan documents are strongly urged to consider offering the material to other libraries. This is especially true for long runs of a title, older material, substantial collections from one agency, and titles with enduring value. The Library of Michigan welcomes the opportunity to review lists of material or to visit libraries considering weeding projects. Contact the Depository Librarian for more information or to arrange for a site visit.

MICHIGAN DOCUMENTS REFERENCE SOURCES

There are many ways to access the information contained in state document collections. The following is intended as a guide for reference staff in facilitating access to Michigan documents. Sources include those that cover historical material, those that index only Michigan materials, those that cover documents from all fifty states. What follows is a brief introduction to the sources most often available in Michigan libraries.

Historical Material

In 1921 the Michigan Historical Commission published the Michigan Bibliography: A Partial Catalogue of Books, Maps, Manuscripts and Miscellaneous Materials Relating to the Resources, Development and History of Michigan From Earliest Times to July 1, 1917: Together with Citation of Libraries in Which the Materials May be Consulted, and a Complete Analytic Index by Subject and Author by Floyd Benjamin Streeter. This two volume set, commonly known as "Streeter," is the cornerstone of Michigan bibliography and contains many government publications. Streeter is an important source for both identifying and locating historical Michigan material prior to 1917. A list of additional sources of historical Michigan material appears in Appendix G.

ANSWER (Library of Michigan Online Catalog)

The Library of Michigan online catalog, ANSWER, is available via the Internet at <http://opac.libofmich.lib.mi.us/screens/opacmenu.html>. In addition to searching the catalog by author, title, Library of Congress subject headings, and classification number, the user can search by keywords. This means that by searching a combination of terms such as "Deer and Michigan" a user will find all of the records where both these words appear. Questions concerning the online public catalog may be referred to Public Services staff. ANSWER includes help screens to assist the user in research efforts and in search strategy.

ANSWER is highly useful for reference purposes, because it contains a high percentage of bibliographic records for most of the Michigan documents in the Library of Michigan's collection, and also lists other resources that are used at the Library of Michigan for finding documents. See Appendix B for background information on the material contained in ANSWER.

Michigan Documents Index

Prior to the inception of online catalogs, this index was the primary reference tool for access to Michigan documents. It also provides access to historical state documents. The Library of Michigan has published an index to Michigan government publications since 1952. From 1952 until 1978 the index was published in paper. In 1978 the format of Michigan Documents switched to microfiche. This format allowed for larger cumulations than were possible with paper publication. A set of nine fiche published in 1983 contained previously uncataloged documents from the early 1800's through 1965. A supplement to this back file consisting of three fiche was published in 1984. In October of 1991 the publication returned to paper with annual cumulations. In 1995, paper publication of Michigan Documents again ceased, and the online service, located on the Internet at <http://tree.libofmich.lib.mi.us/>, begins in 1999. Source files are available and the annual printed cumulations will be resumed, as staff time and resources permit, beginning with annual cumulations for 1999 forward. A single cumulated issue will also be produced to cover the period 1995-1998.

General Sources for State Publications

Monthly Checklist of State Publications

The Library of Congress published the Monthly Checklist of State Publications from 1910 through 1994. The Checklist was a comprehensive list of publications received by the Library of Congress from all states. Michigan documents depository shipments to the Library of Congress are the predominate source for Michigan document listings in this publication. The Library of Congress also receives some state documents via mailing lists maintained by state agencies. The presence of a Library of Congress card number in an entry means that the document has been included in the permanent collection of the Library of Congress, and testifies to its enduring value. The December issue of the Checklist contains entries for periodicals.

Public Affairs Information Service

The Public Affairs Information Service (PAIS) is a general index to periodical articles, books, publications of associations, and state, local, and federal governments.

Statistical Reference Index (SRI)

Congressional Information Service issues a several publications that index statistical information. One is the Statistical Reference Index (SRI). The Congressional Information Service reviews publications from associations, professional organizations, research institutions, commercial publishers, universities and state government agencies for inclusion in SRI. While Michigan state publications make up a very small percentage of the material indexed in this tool, it is a good way of finding the statistical data published by our state government. SRI is very strong for finding statistics on education, regulated businesses and financial institutions, employment, public assistance, crime and corrections, and agriculture. SRI is a very expensive index and is usually only found in larger public and research libraries.

Browsing Your Collection

Often it can be very productive simply to search the documents stacks in order to find what is needed. If an independent Michigan documents collection is maintained, it is often quite small and easily browsed. If the Library of Congress classification system is used in an independent documents collection but not by the remainder of the library, it may be helpful to keep a copy of the Library of Congress Classification Outline, available from the Library of Congress, on hand to assist in browsing by subject classification.

Other Sources of Information

Keeping up with state news is a good way to become aware of important new documents. Newspaper articles and television and radio broadcasts often refer to government publications. However, these sources are notorious for not providing sufficient information for identifying the material referenced. Library of Michigan staff can assist in locating these types of material.

Acquiring Additional Copies

When you are interested in acquiring a state document, the best source is usually the issuing agency. The Michigan Manual is issued biennially (and also on the Internet at <http://council.legislature.mi.gov/>) and is useful in locating addresses of state departments and agencies. The State of Michigan Telephone Directory is updated annually and can also be used to contact the issuing agency. Often the agency will be willing to provide a single free copy of the document requested.

The Publications Office of the Michigan Department of Management and Budget sells many of the most important Michigan documents. For more information on the services of this office refer to the "Distribution to Depository Libraries" section in this manual.

Contacting the offices of a library's state representative or senator in Lansing is also a possible route to obtaining documents. If these officials have local offices, visit or write the staff there as well. Local offices of other state agencies may also prove to be a source for material.

All of these projects have proceeded on an agency-by-agency basis, including the current project to assigned Library of Congress classification numbers to all items. The table below indicates the agency-by-agency status of material in the Library of Michigan collections, and includes the following information: The former Michigan Documents classification stem (Mdoc class), status of cataloging included in ANSWER or if uncataloged material remains in the collection, indicators of which classification system is assigned to the material, and the date that agency was completed.

All current receipts are fully cataloged on ANSWER and in OCLC in the Library of Congress classification system.

*Due to changes in state policy and procedure regarding Michigan government website designations, URLs for the Executive departments listed above will soon change to a new uniform format, www.\(agency\).michigan.gov.michigan.gov). In the interim, agencies are redirecting hits on the old URL to their new sites. Once this change is completed new manual pages will be published with the corrected current URLs.

APPENDIX E:

Shipping List Symbols and Notes

Revised 12/20/01

Notes

Symbols

- If you did not receive this document, contact the Library of Michigan for source information. A number indicating the total number of copies will precede this symbol. These documents were shipped short because the agency did not supply LM with enough copies to complete the distribution. At times, source information will be included on the shipping list, but generally you will need to contact LM to obtain the address and phone number of the agency in order to claim your copy.
- Ephemeral. Materials coded with this symbol are ephemeral and may be kept or discarded upon receipt. Generally these documents will be posters and news releases.
- **
- Not a Michigan Document, keep at will. Occasionally LM receives copies of publications that are not actually Michigan Documents but which contain valuable and interesting information about Michigan. Depositories are not bound by their status to keep these publications; they are distributed as a courtesy only.
- ***
- Do not claim - per agency, claims copies exhausted. This symbol indicates that LM has already attempted to obtain enough copies for a complete distribution but additional copies are unavailable and will remain unavailable in the foreseeable future.
- Do not claim as depository document - per LM/agency agreement, only limited copies are available for distribution. Titles with this note were requested from the authoring agency, but not as depository copies.
- ^ Documents will only be requested in quantities large enough to be distributed to the permanent depositories, or only to Library of Congress, based on their content. Audit reports and some judicial publications and manuals are examples of these documents.

@ Keep latest edition only. Early editions may be discarded. Titles annotated with this note are documents that are updated or revised on a frequent and/or irregular schedule such as brochures outlining state program, seasonal hunting and fishing guides, pamphlets and maps from state parks and recreation areas, etc. Older editions may be retained as desired.

! This is a loose-leaf update to be filed into the main volume(s) according to accompanying instructions. Some documents are core volumes that are updated irregularly by loose-leaf supplements. These supplements will always be annotated on the shipping list to assure they are properly processed.

X Limited Retention - retain this item for one year from the date of receipt. Due to the limited informational content, serial titles annotated with this symbol are exempted from the 5-year retention rule and may be discarded right away.

+ Per agency, issue is mis-numbered. Correct numbering/date is...

# Previously shipped to depositories number ... in shipment number...

$ Shipped separately by agency.

% Shipped separately by LM due to size.

~ Use the following information to claim this title...

= Please note...

APPENDIX F:

Suggested Core List of Michigan Documents

The government of the State of Michigan publishes a number of documents that are useful references and which are standard sources for any library in Michigan regardless of size. The following list contains some of the more important documents distributed through the Michigan Documents Depository Program. Please contact the Library of Michigan's Documents section for information on contacting the specific agencies.

Materials on the list come to depositories as part of the program and do not need to be actively searched out for the collection by new depositories. Items in bold are out of print, and new depositories may wish to search for these items in order to create a complete collection.

The list below is organized alphabetically by title with each entry containing the current call number and a full-text or index specific url if the item is available in electronic format. Asterisked (*) titles are ONLY available in electronic format.
