

Get Involved in Quality Improvement: Reducing Healthcare-Acquired Conditions

Lake Superior Quality Innovation Network (QIN) is inviting nursing homes to participate in their quality improvement work. The initiative aims to:

- Decrease healthcare-acquired conditions and healthcare-associated infections
- Increase mobility of long-stay residents
- Decrease antipsychotic medication use

Lake Superior QIN is comprised of three quality improvement organizations – MPRO of Michigan, MetaStar of Wisconsin and Stratix Health of Minnesota. These organizations have partnered to establish a regional network to promote and lead Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) quality improvement initiatives.

Participating nursing homes will receive technical assistance; strategies to implement Quality Assessment and Performance Improvement (QAPI) principles, processes and resources; access to learning sessions and best practices; and access to National Nursing Home Quality Care Collaborative (NNHQCC) events. In addition, Lake Superior QIN is offering an initiative that is focused on coordination of care and helping reduce hospital readmission and admission rates. There is no cost to participate.

Participating nursing homes will be eligible to nominate themselves for the Governor's Award of Excellence.
