Sue,

At the Technical Advisory Committee meeting in Flint last Wednesday, the United Way spokesperson stated that they had asked for the State to provide an "emergency coordinator" ...someone (with staff?) to manage the bottled water and filter distribution as United Way is stretched to the limit of their skills and capacity. He indicated they had not gotten a response. I do not know to whom they had made the request.

Sue,

You are correct; It is up to Local Emergency Management to decide that they need an emergency declaration. Captain Kelenske and I talked to the MSP District Emergency Coordinator on Friday. They said that NO one at the local meeting including Jamie with United Way indicated that they needed assistance or would be asking for an emergency declaration. This would be a Stafford Act declaration, that would then go to the Governor, who could then ask for assistance from the President and FEMA. We are definitely getting mixed messages from the locals. I'm in KY but if I need to set anything into motion let me know. Linda Scott is in charge for me. My session starts at 1:00 but don't hesitate to call me if you want to talk about this more.

Support local and county efforts to educate providers about Lead monitoring and follow up protocols.

We want to coordinate with health dept and medical society on these efforts- Eden feel free to add.

Fyl- there are many kids who have a capillary (finger prick) test, but not a venous blood test, which is the next step in protocol.

Jackie- in a local disaster situation, who/ what agency would serve as lead on human service side of things, such as water and water filter distribution? I am asking because I'm on call with Mark v on Friday, I kept nudging him to take on the convener role and get all the parties to the table, and he complains nobody telling him anything. And depending on who you talk to, "locals" pushing for the state to take the lead on the water filter logistics. What should the " incident command" structure look like for this situation?
