Maybe its just me, but I can't see the presentation

[9:20 AM] Jacob Hardy (Unverified)

Sorry if missed it, but have you thought about offering any of these programs to utilities? Particularly the EVSE training?

[9:22 AM] Jacob Hardy (Unverified)

It is.

Question: Have you had any contact from EGLE or EGLE contractors about how your program might interface with the forthcoming federal rebate opportunities?

[9:53 AM] Ben Dueweke (Unverified) Marty - the HER Planning team has had a couple meetings with Holland BPW already. Good callout.

[10:00 AM] Christian Cannon (Unverified)

Are the majority of your projects located within DTE or Consumers Energy territory, and have you had any collaborations with either utility company?

[10:01 AM] Geoffrey Bierbower (Unverified)

gotta go, this was very interesting. Thanks!

Thanks for your presentation, Andrew! I was just curious if HE 101 is also successful in reaching to moderate or low-income residents, also for people who have mobility issues.

What actions/rebates, etc. do you have to ensure that folks that install a heat pump have an optimally weatherized building shell?

[10:12 AM] Ryan Yip (he/him) (Unverified)

Awesome, thank you!

I would love to know to what extent contractors in this space are aware of the importance of federal and state policy (and who the policymakers are) in terms of existence and funding for programs that support the work they do.
