Note: The underwriting standards outlined above are starting point minimum and maximum standards. For purposes of Direct Lending underwriting standards, which are applied to all direct loans and to any development seeking soft/gap financing from the Authority, staff analysis of a specific transaction may suggest variance from these standards. For example, in some counties where the actual median incomes are substantially below historic exception figures used by HUD to calculate income and rent limits, it may be appropriate to use even more conservative rent trending assumptions for units with rents at regulatory limits. In a similar vein, in preservation transactions, actual operating histories may suggest different financial projections related to expense growth.

For developments seeking only 9% credits without soft/gap financing from the Authority, sponsors may request waivers from these standards based on documentation that the alternative underwriting standards have been reviewed and approved in advance by both the debt and equity providers for the project.
