

RESOURCES TO HELP PARENTS TEACH DRIVING SKILLS

When it comes to driving skills, you are your teen's first teacher. Take advantage of these online resources to help you make the most of the opportunity to influence their driving behavior.

CHECKPOINTS

This website, maintained by the University of Michigan Injury Prevention Center, offers tips and resources for parents of teen drivers, including an interactive Parent-Teen Driving Agreement you can customize, print, and sign.

AAA POINTERS FOR PARENTS

This page on the AAA website provides advice for guiding your teen through the driver education process. There is also a link to sign up for the StartSmart program, which includes a series of e-newsletters and a 2-hour online webinar for parents of teen drivers.

NSC POINTERS FOR PARENTS

The National Safety Council (NSC) offers lessons for parents to help them get the most out of practicing driving with their teens. Sign up and you'll get a new lesson emailed to you each week.

NATIONAL HIGHWAY TRAFFIC SAFETY ADMINISTRATION (NHTSA) TEEN DRIVING

NHTSA offers advice for parents of teen drivers on a wide range of topics, including speeding, impaired driving, distracted driving, seat belt use and more.
