Staying Connected With Michigan's Retirees

June 2018

Vol. 21 No. 1

Signature Moment Starts New Life Phase

Each year, employees do something—you might call it a ritual—to celebrate the completion of their retirement application. Maybe they take a picture or raise a glass to toast the occasion. We at ORS have seen it many times.

Andy and Kathy Sheufelt, former teachers at Okemos Public Schools, celebrated that rite of passage about a year ago with a ceremonial photo with their signed documents. Although they haven't been retired for as long as some on our retirement rolls, we caught up with the Sheufelts to check in to see how things were going.

"Deciding to retire last June was not the original plan," said Kathy. "I had 34 years and Andy had 31 years. We had a daughter getting married and another daughter considering grad school. However, when we met with our financial advisor and considered all the alternatives, the time was right."

Andy added, "Not everything about the decision was financial. In my case, although I loved teaching, I felt in my heart the need to do something different."

Kathy keeps busy by continuing to meet her workout buddies at 5 a.m., but no longer needs to rush to work. She checks in on her mother several times per week and does math tutoring when she can. Andy works part-time as a greenhouse technician on the campus of Michigan State University. "I have a passion for plants," he said. They also rented a lodge and hosted family for a long weekend. Andy is planning to travel to Alaska with his brother this summer.

"Having access to a pension is a game changer," said Kathy. "I heard about the 'three-legged stool' of retirement savings (Social Security, pension, and savings) and we invested. It was so worth it!"

Kathy and Andy Sheufelt signing their retirement papers.

Andy's view is that their pension adds stability to what could be a turbulent time for some people. He said, "Our financial planner told us stories about people who used up their nest egg within the first couple of years of retirement. He told us not to do that." And they won't.

Kathy thinks retirement is awesome! Andy's staying busy, but it's not the same kind of busy. Both express gratitude for the chance to spend time with important and interesting people in their lives. Recently they reminded each other that "it's coming up on a year." When they look at that photo from last year, they celebrate great careers and feel validated that their decision to retire was the right one.

Protect Yourself From Identity Theft and Scams That Target Retirees

Scams and frauds are much easier to perpetrate in the age of the microchip. Over 15.4 million U.S. consumers had $16 billion stolen according to the 2017 Identity Fraud Study published by Javelin Strategy & Research, an increase of two million more victims over the previous year.

Since 2015, the year chip cards were introduced in the U.S., the most common form of theft involved opening new accounts using the victim's name and stolen personal information.

The most common form of theft since 2015 involves opening new accounts from victim's stolen personal information.

If you discover you've become a victim of identity theft:

- File a report online with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) at IdentityTheft.gov or call 877-438-4338.
- You may also wish to file a report with local police. Michigan law has made a victim's hometown police department the standard reporting agency for identity theft. You can download the Identity Theft Victim Information form (DD-014) from the Michigan State Police website. Include the report you filed with the FTC with the report generated by your local police department.
- If this happens to you, go to consumer.ftc.gov and download the publication, Identity Theft: A Recovery Plan, for steps, checklists, and sample letters to help you with reinstating your credit history.

In addition to identity theft, also watch out for these scams:

- Phone calls from someone claiming to be from the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) saying you either owe money or are due a refund and asking for personal information over the phone. The IRS has stated it will not initiate contact using the phone.
- Phone calls from scammers posing as Medicare "agents" telling seniors they need to purchase their new Medicare card. Medicare will be sending these cards between April 2018 and April 2019. You will only need to ensure your address is up-to-date with the Social Security Administration (SSA) at ssa.gov for you to receive your card. You won't need to pay for it.

Pension Funding Ratio

The market funding ratio is based on the market value of assets at the fiscal year end. The actuarial funding ratio is the best practice used by all pension plans nationwide. It incorporates a five-year “smoothing” period of investment gains and losses, which minimizes volatility in a pension system funding requirement.

While investment gains and losses are generally smoothed over five years, the retirement board and the DTMB director adopted a policy last August to recognize significant investment gains immediately in order to effectively “buy down” the assumed rate of return. Dedicating investment gains for this purpose results in lower market risk to your plan. The gains in fiscal year 2017 allowed the system administrators to reduce the assumed rate of return from 7.50 percent to 6.75 percent, while still increasing the overall funding ratio.

The Judges Retirement System has an Actuarial Funding Ratio of 99 percent. This puts the system at the forefront nationwide for funding best practices.

The state treasurer administers all the system’s investments. The main objective is to maximize the return rate and meet the actuarial assumptions by being prudent with investments and maintaining a diverse portfolio to eliminate unnecessary risk.

“ORS adheres to best practices in the protection of your data.”

From the Director

If you're like me, you've noticed news stories on data security issues. Rest assured, ORS adheres to best practices in the protection of your data, as established by the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST). How do we go about doing this?

We protect your data three different ways: through technical management, through appropriate data handling, and through incident response plans.

First, by technical management of your data we mean the systems we use to store and retrieve your data. These systems and machines are managed by Information Technology (IT) professionals who will make changes when necessary to keep our security practices consistent with the NIST best practices.

Second, we have implemented policies and procedures at ORS for carefully handling your data. Our customer service employees abide by these policies. In fact, every ORS employee completes either online or in-person training six times each year on issues touching all kinds of security.

Third, we can never eliminate all threats, but we have detailed plans in place to act quickly if we receive any indication an incident may have occurred.

ORS is sometimes required by law to give data to individuals or organizations requesting it through the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). We carefully review each request and always comply with state law in delivering what's required.

I hope you enjoy this issue of the Connections newsletter. The June issue is dedicated to reporting the financial health of each of our retirement systems. In this issue, you will find information about identity theft and scams that target retirees. We're also continuing our feature profile of two of our retirees, my favorite recurring feature of Connections. If you have a story to share, please send it to: ORS-RetireeStories@michigan.gov.
