Retiree spotlight

'Life's reversals' mark serendipitous journey

Redirection is a constant for Paul Jackson, a retired information specialist-librarian with Flint roots who sees his "life's reversals" as serendipitous.

"I got into library work and it fit perfectly," said Jackson, an Eastern Michigan University and University of Michigan graduate who served in the U.S. Army. "I've had some reversals with divorce, health, and so forth, but it's got me where I needed to be."

The 86-year-old resides in Steilacoom, Washington. Married seven years to JoAnn Lakin, a retired teacher from Nebraska, their lives revolve around family, writing, and music.

He writes non-fiction as an essayist, reviewer, and contributor to Public Libraries Online, a publication of the Public Libraries Association. He self-published Letters from Paul, a compilation written as a deacon to parish members. He edits stories for the 50-member Plateau Area Writers Association's Quarterly and anthology Contrasts.

Jackson has three grown children from two previous marriages: a son in suburban Seattle; a son in Deadwood, South Dakota; and a daughter in Texas. He has 11 grandchildren, sharing four with Lakin.

He retired in 1996 after 10 years with Thumb Correctional Facility, the Lapeer medium-security prison where he established a library supporting GED achievement and vocational trades for 1,200 inmates. He relocated to help his son, whose wife was dying of cancer. He left on family leave and discovered he could retire.

"I'm so grateful for having the state's pension and medical insurance, which has kept me able, alive, and well," said Jackson, a colon cancer survivor.

He was a percussionist with the 214th Army Band at Fort Richardson, Alaska, and played with Anchorage Symphony Orchestra. He spent 16 years with Gateway Concert Band in Enumclaw, Washington, leaving in 2019 because of his cancer diagnosis.

He longs to return to Michigan and the 1938 Long Lake cottage near Interlochen his dad built. "I haven't been there for a while, but I'd like to go more often," Jackson said.

Welcome to the September 2022 issue of your Connections newsletter.

It's been a rugged year when it comes to household and family finances, with inflation hovering near a 40-year high. That means something even more important is budgeting, which you know doesn't end when you're retired.

Strategies like determining monthly expenses reviewing your emergency fund, planning for safe withdrawals, diversification considerations, and better organizing your finances are all worth considering. It's always a good time to review your spending and expenses.

Your retirement journey involves making adjustments. The Office of Retirement Services (ORS) is here to help you and your family navigate life. Acting in the best interests on your behalf and for the state pension systems is about being conscientious, one of ORS' core values, in protecting and maintaining the health of your retirement benefits.

Meanwhile, I am pleased to deliver you the 2020-21 financial summary for the Judges Retirement System (JRS) in this issue. While the financial summary provides many details, more information is available in the JRS 2021 Summary Annual Report.

Not everything is about balanced budgets, however. For instance, Paul Jackson's retiree story is an inspiration. If you have a retiree story you'd like to share with us, please send it to ORS-RetireeStories@Michigan.gov.

“It's always a good time to review your spending and expenses.”

Assets and liabilities

Pension funding ratio

The market funding ratio is based on the market value of assets at the fiscal year-end. The actuarial funding ratio is the best practice used by all pension plans nationwide. It incorporates a five-year smoothing period of investment gains and losses, which minimizes volatility in a pension system's funding requirement.

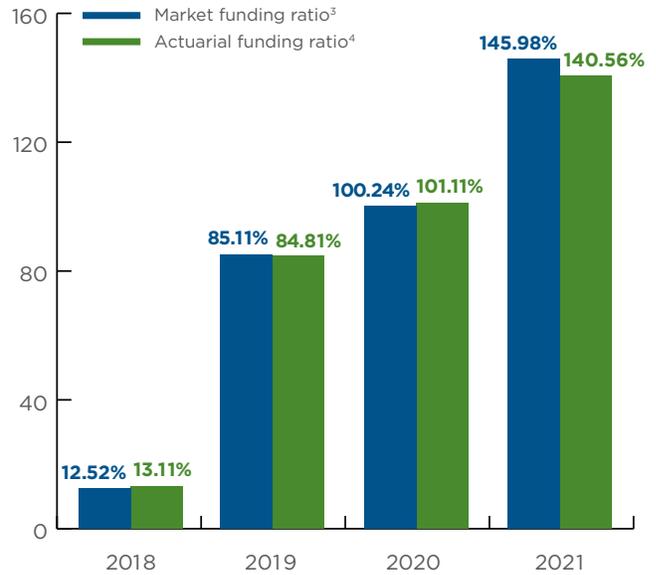

1. Calculated on market value of assets.
2. Pension Actuarial Valuation for the FY ended Sept. 30, 2021, pages B-5 and C-6.

The Judges Retirement System has an actuarial funding ratio of 100.3%.

Healthcare funding ratio

Starting in FY 2017-18, the System began pre-funding OPEB costs which significantly decreased the liability and increased the asset levels. Pre-funding is a best practice that invests assets and allows investment returns to help fund the plan. Many states do not pre-fund OPEB costs. This reform put Michigan on the leading edge of the OPEB funding best practices.

UM-Flint economist says to save more

Chris Douglas is blunt about the sluggish economy hurting household finances, but says there are moves you can make to improve your financial outlook.

“It’s tough the way things are going,” the University of Michigan-Flint associate economics professor said. “All terminology aside, we’re in a slowdown.”

Inflation lingers near its recent 40-year high. The University of Michigan’s index of consumer sentiment hovers not far from hitting the lowest point in its 70-year history.

“Inflation is frustrating, especially when you see prices rising 10% and your purchasing power is being eroded,” Douglas said. “You’ve got to up your savings, however you can. Rebuild the nest egg. When you’re 60, 70, or whatever, risk is not your friend. Volatility is not your friend.”

“I think for retirees in the retirement system, they’re at least going to get a steady stream of income,” said Douglas, whose parents are retired educators who are both Michigan Public School Employees’ Retirement System members. “When there’s a slowdown, you want to be able to get through it.”

Suggestions to hedge against inflation:

- Delay — or at least think hard about — major projects or purchases, such as a new vehicle, roof, or furnace, unless absolutely necessary.
- Set aside savings, particularly for an emergency fund.
- Avoid changing your asset mix on investments.
- Don’t overextend yourself, live within your means, and “don’t overdo it on credit cards or dip into your nest egg or home equity.”

Medicare Open Enrollment

Since the beginning of September, you've probably received a lot of information about Medicare, healthcare and prescription drug insurance plans, premiums, deductibles, and networks. The information is meant to prepare you for what is known as Medicare Open Enrollment.

Medicare Open Enrollment runs from Oct. 15 through Dec. 7 each year. During this annual period, you can compare your current coverage to your choices for 2023 and if you want select a new insurance plan outside of the retirement system for 2023.

We know this process can be confusing but gathering the information you need before the start of Medicare Open Enrollment will make the process simpler.

Tips to help you navigate Medicare Open Enrollment.

If you do not want to change your current coverage elections through the retirement system, you do not need to do anything.

Medicare allows enrollment in one Medicare Advantage plan and/or one Part D prescription plan.

Notify ORS when you or anyone on your insurance has coverage with another insurance plan. You can do this in miAccount or by sending in a completed Insurance Enrollment/Change Request (R0452B) form. (It is your responsibility to keep ORS informed of any changes that may affect coverage.)

Enrolling in a plan outside this retirement system could put your ORS insurance at risk of being terminated due to the other plan. Before signing up for additional coverage, call your current your health and prescription plan to find out if enrollment in additional coverage would impact your coverage with ORS.

If you need help making decisions about your coverage or understanding the terminology, several national and state resources offer help.

Medicare.gov can tell you how original Medicare and Medicare Advantage plans work.

Medicare Rights Center is a non-profit that provides free questions and answers about Medicare rules and deadlines.

State Health Insurance Assistance Program (SHIP) has counselors available in every state to providing free one-on-one assistance.
